It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

P R E F A C E.

THE respect for ancestors, and the desire to perpetuate their memory, is not alone the result of Christian civilization ; but is older, even as old as the history of Adam, and his immediate posterity. The Jewish law-giver, Moses, begins his history with Genealogy, or Genesis, and is careful to continue it through the Pentateuch with marvelous accuracy and painstaking. The effort is renewed under the Gospel dispensation by the Evangelists, and so the pedigree and history of the families of the Earth are perpetuated, and their connection handed down with great care, and particularity, and all it is thought by special appointment of God himself. So then, this reverence for ancestry, and love of kindred, seems to be inherent in our very natures, as a race, but is heightened and fostered by civilization, and especially by Christian civilization. These thoughts are not presented here by way of apology, for no apology seems to be necessary for the writing of a family "Memorial," or pedigree, in this nineteenth century. I am glad to say they are now so common and numerous as to preclude all wonder and astonishment, except in the minds of a few, who wonder if it pays the Author, and how a man can spend money and years over such worthless and "endless genealogies." The preparatory researches necessary to the production of this work of genealogical history, was commenced by the Author the summer of 1855, and has been continued with more or less intensity and persistency up to the last proof sheet of the printer. It is proper, however, to say, just here, that I suffered myself to be somewhat diverted from this main object of my researches, to publish a history of my native town of New Britain, Ct., containing 538 large octavo pages, finely and closely printed, and issued Dec. 1867—an edition of 1,000 copies—which was well received, and copies sold enough barely to pay the expense of publishing, to say nothing of time of compiling. In the preface to this history of New Britain, Ct., occurs this statement, which I beg leave to quote, viz : "I think it was during the spring of 1850, that a gentleman from the State of Ohio, by the name of Andrews, called on the writer, to enquire after the early settlers of that name in this State—Connecticut. I could give him no information on the subject, having no history of my ancestors, back of my own grand-father. He passed on, leaving on my mind this reflection. What! lived more than a half a century, and know scarce a hundred years of your own family history? I began by looking over old files of deeds and papers, searching family, church, town, and probate records, and the State archives, until I had gathered near four thousand names, and collated several of the branches, into a regular chain of families, from the early settlement of the country, to the child now in the cradle." Thus, this simple enquiry of my namesake from Ohio, set in motion a train of thought, resulting in long years of labor and toil, and culminating in the production of both these publications. The purpose and object of the following pages is to give a brief genealogical history of John Andrews and his wife Mary, the settlers in Connecticut, 1640, and their descendants. An attempt has been made in these pages to give an account of the birth, parentage, occupation, and location of each of the sons and daughters of these Puritan pioneers and early settlers in this country. It seems to be proper just here to say that this object has been accomplished with more or less accuracy and fullness, in exact proportion to the record found, or facts furnished. Every available means has been used, private diaries, the old family Bible, school and ecclesiastical society records, church and town records, Probate Court and war records, State archives, private burying grounds, and public cemeteries, printed genealogies, and family memorials, and last, but not least, letter correspondence directly with the families of the name to the number of 2,000 received, and a far greater number written, to which no response was ever made. The public records down to the war of the Revolution, 1775, were, to some good degree and extent, kept in good order, (considering the newness of the country,) but at the breaking out of that war, almost everything of the nature was abandoned, both in families and public, except, perhaps, the Probate Court, and a very few churches. Then immediately succeeding the war, was a wonderful spirit of emigration among the survivors, and families removed everywhere, very like the dispersion of the Jews of old—for they forsook father and mother, brothers and sisters, houses and lands, for the frontiers and border settlements,—bidding farewell to all family connections, genealogies, and memorials, their strong arms were exclusively occupied in clearing the new farm, and building the log house—not even time, money, or material, to furnish a headstone to the grave, when one of their number died. In the new country every energy was taxed for a subsistence. Hence the great, and in many instances, insurmountable difficulties in finding the descendants of these enterprising emigrants. The Egyptians preserved their ancestors as mummies, for the respect and love they had for them, and the Greeks filled their houses and public places with statues of their friends and relatives ; but the Daguerrian art gives us an advantage over all past ages, in preserving and perpetuating the memory of ancestors in a portable and convenient form, by the aid of the engraver and printer—and all this at so cheap a rate that all classes of the people may enjoy the luxury. Thanks to the artists of the 19th century, and let all the people say Amen. Each individual represented in the work by the engraver, has either by themselves or friends generously furnished an embellishment, and have my hearty thanks. I should have been gratified to have bound in many more, but knew not who to solicit, for almost all were utter strangers. I fear an opportunity has not been extended to some whose modesty and delicacy has prevented a voluntary contribution to this "family Memorial," for such is its design, a private family history, not, however, exclusively, but mainly. I acknowledge, however, my obligations to many genealogists, and profess a strong desire to gratify and aid all studious antiquaries in their researches after facts, dates, and history. I honor this class of men and women, yea, more, I revere them, as gifted and inspired of God in an important sense, for it only falls to the lot of a few to inherit the taste, patience, or skill, to gather materials, and collate them into a genealogy. While doing it they are almost sure of incurring the ridicule of the thoughtless and gay, as well as the contempt of the avaricious and money-making portion of the community. It is only succeeding generations that will duly appreciate their labors, or honor their graves. Very few of all the thousands of names which appear on the following pages, ever before appeared in history. For the most part, they are persons unknown to fame, hence the task of writing a sketch (even a brief one,) has been found quite a different thing from merely transcribing what from an index may be already found in print. Not that our family are entirely unknown to fame ; far am I from a disposition to undervalue the progenitor, or his descendants. I am proud of both. In morals, distinguished for piety, patriotism, honesty, industry, and frugality. Their natural traits and gifts, common height, moderately high cheek bones, and ruddy countenance, inclined to be thick set, of quick step, with sanguine temperament, strong passions, but generous impulses, light, clear complexions, tenacious of life, and hopeful, extremely fond of frontier life, and always ready to enlist in defence of the country, restless under restraint, of ready wit, fond of domestic life, very prolific, of good common sense, or when sudden emergencies arise have expedients ready. The males are mostly farmers, or mechanics, generally well to do in the world. The females have been found equal to their brothers, and have formed alliances quite as honorable and satisfactory.

Very few of the descendants of John and Mary Andrews are, or have been found in deep poverty, or ignorance. Of several thousand with whom I have corresponded, a fair hand, and sensible expressions, have almost invariably appeared, while many have evinced intellectual tastes and capacities which would grace any position in life. And this is found true of both sexes alike. It has excited surprise that a work of this kind should require so much time as fifteen or twenty years. This is in a good degree accounted for by the fact that a mere moiety of the whole were personally known to the author, consequently the locality of the individual or family was to be discovered, and the post-office address ascertained, perhaps from the least possible data to start from. The result was often returned letters (of which some hundreds have accumulated on my hands). If so fortunate as to find the person or family, and get a response, it formed the beginning of a correspondence, or series of questions and answers, (doubtless annoying to many,) and resulting at length in proving the family not of us, but of one of the other several progenitors of the name in this country early. And just here the skill of the expert was needed to determine the case. Not like many other large families who have extended genealogies, the Andrews have had none to which to turn for aid, thus circumstances have made this a pioneer work, a reaching or feeling out into the dark at random, thus requiring more than ordinary care and time. But I would not fail to present the sunny side of this picture also. How happy I have been made by the reception of a genial and kind letter from some new correspondent, heretofore an utter stranger, but now received as a brother, or sister beloved, a letter full of encouragement, offering to do all in their power, expressing joy at the prospect of having a book published, and closing with the wish for a copy when ready. And this leads me to remark that, should the readers of this volume obtain a tithe of the satisfaction in its perusal, that the author has enjoyed in its construction, he will feel himself amply rewarded. It gives me great pleasure just here to make honorable mention of a few who have aided me essentially in materials for its compilation. Rev. Abner Morse, Boston, deceased; Hon. Tracy Peck, Bristol, deceased; Hon. Edwin Stearns, of Middletown, deceased; Gad Andrews, Esq., Southington, Ct.; Dr. D. W. Patterson, Newark Valley, N. Y.; Rev. James Pierce Root, Perry, N. Y.; Col. Wm. Seward Gridley, Jackson, Mich., who is compiling a Gridley genealogy; Henry M. Benedict, Esq., Albany; Hon. John Boyd, West Winsted, Ct.; Mr. Jonathan Andrews, Richmond, Mass.; A. S. Kellogg, Esq., Vernon, Ct.; and Ira B. Peck, Esq., Woonsocket, R. I., and many others embraced in the body of the work, to whom I have made acknowledgments in writing up a sketch, or if, through inadvertence, omitted, I wish to remember with gratitude, for every facility afforded me. I have said the Andrews family, as a race, are fond of frontier life. I think I do no injustice in giving them as a whole this trait of character. Fond of experiment, with a love of adventure, they are nervous and restless, are found in all callings and employments, in all parts of this, and some in other countries. Only a few families retain the old home of their fathers ; hence the great difficulty in finding the homes of the present generation. I am well aware that quite a number of families, and even branches of considerable length, will be omitted from this genealogy, owing partly to the indifference of the parties themselves, and partly to the nature of the enterprise.

Being in my 74th year, I dare not risk another five years in looking up the lost sheep of this Israel on the mountains and valleys of this wide country lest a worst evil befall us. Hence I feel constrained to go to press with what I have, even at the risk of leaving some names out of the list.

And now, my kind family friends, permit me to ask that God, who gave you a pious ancestry, and a goodly heritage in this favored land, to bless you, to keep you, and bring us all to that haven of rest, so that not one of all our families and tribes shall be left out of the Book of Life.

Yours truly,

ALFRED ANDREWS.

NEW BRITAIN, CONN., July 4th, 1871.

INTRODUCTION.

THE name Andrews is generally supposed to have originated from Andrew the Apostle, born at Bethsaida, and a brother of Peter. The Latin name Andreas signifies a man, or manly, or like a man. The name is quite common in England, and was a common name there in the early history of that country. The English books on heraldry give a full description of very many "coats of arms" to the different families, according to the spelling of the name. But these insignia of place or position are of little account at this day, and especially in this free country. The spelling of the name, or its various terminations, has as little significance as the arms. Like very many other family names the spelling or termination has a great variety, thus—Andrew, Andrews, Andrewes, Andrus, Andrus, Andreas, Anders, Andros, Andross, Androws, Androwes, Androse, and Andores. Some of my correspondents have said, "I can not belong to your race, for you see I spell dros, or drus, or druss, while you spell drews;" and the inquiry has often been made—how such diversity could occur in the same family? I answer, it might be said that clerks, registrars, and often ministers of a parish, change the spelling to suit their own taste or fancy—spell by the sound often. An instance of this kind is known to have occurred in the descendants of William Andrews, a settler in New Haven, 1638–9, from Hampsworth, England. His family descendants, almost to a man, spelled drews, yet when a branch settled at Coventry and Vernon, Coun., a few generations later, the minister of the parish, in the record of baptisms of the children, calls the father Anders. Any number of illustrations to the same effect might be quoted, were it necessary, to show that the mere spelling or termination of the name decides nothing positively about the ancestry. So antiquaries give little heed to mere spelling of names by living individuals, or found on record.

Since John Andrews, whom I place at the head of my genealogical history as the first settler, was only one of many of the name of Andrews who came from England to this country to avoid persecution at home, and establish a free government and institutions here, I have thought proper to put in the form of an Introduction, brief sketches of miscellaneous persons of the name, but not supposed to be his descendants. I do this in preference to an Appendix, so common in works of this kind.

Saint Andrew, of Bethsaida, first called of the apostles of our Saviour, was a disciple of John the Baptist. He was son of Jonas. Little is said of him in the Scriptures, but Origen says he preached in Scythia. St. Jerome says he preached in Achaia. He is considered the patron saint of Scotland. He is said to have been crucified at Patras, in Achaia, on a cross of this form X, and hence called St. Andrew's cross.

Bishop Lancelot Andrews, D. D., an eminent English divine, born in London, 1565, and educated at Cambridge. He died at Winchester House, 25th September, 1626. He held successively the bishoprics of Chichester, of Ely, and of Winchester, and was made by James I., (who esteemed him highly,) a privy councillor. He was one of the authors of the common translation of the Scriptures. His best works are his sermons, his lectures on the Ten Commandments, and his Orphan Lectures. Walter records this of him. Neale, bishop of Durham, and Andrews, were standing together behind the king's chair at dinner, when James suddenly turned to them and said, "My lords, can not I take my subjects' money when I want it, without all this formality in Parliament? Bishop Neale readily answered, "God forbid, sir, but you should; you are the breath of our nostrils." The king turned to the bishop of Winchester. "Well, my lord, and what say you?" "Sir," said Andrews, "I have no skill to judge of parliamentary cases." The king answered, "No put-offs, my lord, answer me immediately." "Then, sir," said he, "I think it lawful for you to take my Brother Neale's money, for he offers it." King James had such a veneration for this excellent prelate, that in his presence he refrained from all levity. And he was in no less esteem with Charles I. His was a life of prayer. A great part of five hours every day was spent in the exercises of devotion. In his last sickness he continued, while awake, to pray audibly, till his strength failed, and then, by lifting his hands and eyes, he showed that he still prayed. He was very charitable and munificent. He was a patron of learning, being master of Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Chaldean, Syriac, and Arabic, besides fifteen modern languages. He had a Brother Thomas, and a Brother Nicholas.

Mr. Richard Andrews,* a haberdasher at the Mermaid, in Cheapside, London, England, a "Godly man," who having lent £500 to Plymouth Colony in New England, gave it to the poor. He was an alderman in London; he was also one of the associates of the Plymouth Colony in 1626. Winthrop says he gave many cattle† by Mr. Humfry, and £544 by Mr. Peter, to the colony. In 1687, October, a tract of land was granted to Messrs. Richard Andrews, Hartley, Shirley, and Beauchamp, extending three miles up into the woods, in the town of Scituate, Mass.

Thomas Andrews was a London merchant, and Lord Mayor of London in 1650, and made Cotton Mather his chaplain. Probably brother of Richard Andrews above.

Thomas Andrews and Joseph Andrews, of Hingham, Mass., drew house lots there 18th September, 1635, and Joseph Andrews made free in Boston 3d March, 1635-6, and 8th July he was made constable at Barrecove, now Hingham; in 1636 he was a deputy of the General Court at Boston; also at the same session of the court he was made one of a committee to inquire after the valuation of the several towns. He was a member of the General Court 18th April, 1636, which sat until 17th May, and he was appointed one of a committee to look after the boundary between Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies, and to report at both courts, which was done at an adjourned session, 1st August, 1637. It is said Thomas, the father, was an old man when he came over with his only son, Joseph, from Devonshire, England; settled at Hingham, Mass., where the son, Joseph, was the first town clerk.

Mr. Thomas Andrews was a member of the General Court of the governor and colony of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, 1629, one year before they left England, from which it is supposed he was one who came over, 1630, with Governor Winthrop and about 1,500 persons, to settle Boston and its vicinity. The court had two sessions that year, and he was one of the auditing committee.

Goodman Andrews was appointed 13th March, 1638, to run the line between Hingham and Weymouth. He was the father of the Joseph above, and lived in Hingham to a great age.

William Andrews was made freeman in Boston, 4th March, 1633. His name appears on the record of the General Court as constable. 4th December, 1638, in the record of the quarter court, one William Andrews was, for having made an assault upon Henry Coggan, sentenced to be severely whipped, and to be delivered up to be a slave to whom the court shall appoint. But 3d September, 1639, William Andrews, who was formerly committed to slavery for his ill and insolent carriage, is by this quarter court hold at Boston, (on his good carriage,) released from slavery, and put to Mr. Endicot, who promises to pay Mr. Henry Coggan £8 10s., Andrews to serve Mr. Endicott the rest of the time.

Robert Andrews, of Ipswich, was made free 6th May, 1635. He was a creditor to the estate of Joseph Andrews. He appears to have been licensed to draw wine at Ipswich in 1640.

Richard Andrews, in 1634, was written to by the court, but no record is found of his being made free.

Samuel Andrews, aged 37, was a passenger of the "Increase," Robert Lea, Master, 15th April, 1635; wife Jane, aged 30; child Jane, aged 3; child Elizabeth, aged 2 years. Was this the Samuel Andrews, of Cambridge, who was on a committee to find the north bound of the patent of Massachusetts Bay, who was well skilled in mathematics, having command of several ships to find the difference of longitude between this and England?

Mary, wife of William Andrews, died in Braintree, Mass., 19th November, 1639.*

Daniel Andrews made free in Boston, March, 1689.

Henry Andrews made free in Taunton, Mass., 1643.

William Andrews, Master of Ship Elizabeth, with passengers, 1634.

Thomas Andrews and Thomas Andrews, Jr., in Dorchester, Mass., 1664. This Thomas, Sen., is supposed by some to be a brother of Francis, of Hartford and Fairfield, Conn., and John, of Farmington, Conn., the progenitor of the families treated of mainly in this work.

John Andrews, son of Captain Thomas Andrews, of Hingham, Mass., married Patience Nichols, September, 1658, in that town.

William Andrews embarked for Virginia in the Globe of London, aged 18 years, 1635, Jeremy Blackman, Master.

Samuel Andrews, son of Samuel and Elizabeth Andrews, born in Weymouth, Mass., 17th February, 1698.

John Andrews, of Lynn, Mass., died 18th May, 1662; his widow, Sarah, died 29th April, 1666.

Thomas, Abigail, and Ruth Andrews, of Hingham, Mass., testify 1708, that Melitable Warren was not a witch.

Elizabeth Andrews, of Windsor, Conn., married Jacob Gibbs, of that town, 4th December, 1657.

Mr. Thomas Andrews, a deputy to General Court from Hingham, Mass., 1678.

Mr. Samuel Andrews and Mr. Cotton, the two Fellows of Harvard College, be paid £50 money for helping to carry on the president's work after Mr. Oakes' death.

John Andrews, a committee to lay out land near Ipswich, 1675; also appointed lieutenant of 3d company, at Chebacco, Ipswich, Mass.

Thomas Andrews and Rebecca Craddock petition General Court for £679 6s. 4d., the country owe them.

Mr. James Andrews appointed a committee to lay out land by Massachusetts General Court, 1683.

Mr. William Andrews, a school-master in Hartford, Conn., 1689; was a town clerk there. His name is on the monument of the Center Church Cemetery as one of those who came from Newtown, or Cambridge, or Dor-

"I, William Andrews, being sick and weak, but of perfect memory, do in this my last Will and Testament, give and bequeath to Abigail, my wife, my house, barn, and home lot, as it is enjoyed between my son, Edward Granniss, and me; also I do give and bequeath unto the said Abigail, my wife, all my meadow and swamp lying in the south meadow, and that lyeth in the place called Hockanum, and all my uplands also, during the time of her natural life; also I give to the said Abigail, my wife, two cows and one yearling calf; also I give unto her 4 yds. of kersey, and 3 doz. buttons, and silk, and all of her movable goods, during the time she liveth unmarried. If the said Abigail, my wife, shall see cause to alter her condition by marrying another man, then my will is, that such of the movables as she can conveniently spare, shall be disposed of among the children as she shall advise with the overseers of this my Will. Also my will is, to give unto my son John one working steer. Also my Will is that Abigail, my wife, shall dispose of my land, Meadow, Swamp, Housing and home lot, among the children, to every one of them some, as she shall think fit, with the advise and consent of the overseers of this my Will. I do hereby make Abigail, my wife, sole Executrix of this my last Will and Testament, and do also instruct my loving friend, Edward Stebbins, and my brother, George Grave, to assist my wife, and to see this my Will executed and performed. At a Particular Court held 4th March, 1651, Mr. Andrews was confirmed Recorder of the town of Hartford. His first wife had died at Braintree, Mass., when 2d he married this Abigail, to whom he gave in his Will as above. After his death (the precise date being unknown) she distributed the estate to the children then surviving, and she married Nathaniel Bearding, who lived on Lord's Hill, and who died about 1674. The sons were John Andrews, Thomas Andrews, Samuel Andrews, born 20th October, 1615; son-in-law, Thomas Spencer, Jr., husband of their daughter Esther. The father, Mr. William Andrews, was a jurymen, 1644. He was in the first land division in Hartford, 1639, and drew thirty acres. In 1640 he taught school; had an appropriation of £10. He resided south of "Little River." The town awarded him £80, in 1642, for teaching school.

Thomas and Edward Andrews were in list of freemen in Hartford, 1669, in October. In December, 1675, Thomas Andrews was appointed

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for transparency and accountability, particularly in financial matters.

2. The second part outlines the specific procedures for handling sensitive information. It states that all data must be stored securely and accessed only by authorized personnel. This section also covers the protocols for data retention and disposal, ensuring that information is not kept longer than necessary and is properly destroyed when no longer needed.

3. The third part addresses the issue of confidentiality and the protection of intellectual property. It requires that all proprietary information be kept confidential and that any unauthorized disclosure be reported immediately to the appropriate authorities. This section also discusses the importance of using secure communication channels for sensitive information.

4. The fourth part focuses on the training and education of staff. It mandates that all employees receive regular training on security protocols, data protection, and confidentiality requirements. This ensures that everyone is aware of their responsibilities and equipped with the necessary skills to handle sensitive information correctly.

5. The fifth part discusses the role of external auditors and the importance of regular audits. It states that independent audits should be conducted periodically to verify the accuracy of records and the effectiveness of internal controls. This helps to identify any weaknesses or areas for improvement in the system.

6. The sixth part covers the legal and regulatory requirements that must be followed. It references relevant laws and regulations, such as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), and ensures that all operations comply with these standards. This section also discusses the importance of staying up-to-date with changes in legislation.

7. The seventh part discusses the importance of documentation and the creation of a comprehensive policy manual. It requires that all procedures be clearly documented and that the manual be updated regularly to reflect any changes in the organization's needs or external requirements.

8. The eighth part addresses the issue of incident response and the development of a plan to handle security breaches. It states that a clear and concise plan should be in place to guide the organization's response to any incidents, ensuring that the impact is minimized and the system is restored as quickly as possible.

9. The ninth part discusses the importance of ongoing monitoring and evaluation. It requires that the organization regularly assess its security posture and make adjustments as needed. This includes conducting risk assessments and reviewing the effectiveness of existing controls.

10. The tenth and final part of the document provides a summary of the key points and reiterates the commitment to maintaining the highest standards of security and integrity. It concludes by stating that these measures are essential for the long-term success and sustainability of the organization.

Estate of Thomas Andrews, of Middletown, Conn. His inventory was taken, and returned to Probate Court, at Hartford, 3d March, 1690, £56 9s. 6d. Distribution to the widow, Abigail, and to Mary, Thomas, John, Samuel, Hannah, Elizabeth, and Sarah, children of the deceased. Appraisers were William Cheeney, Samuel Collins, and Daniel Markham. The overseers of the Will were David Sage and Isaac Johnson.

The father, probably a son of Mr. William Andrews, the school-master of Hartford, 1639, and the first town clerk.

William Andrews, in 1634, was Master of the Ship John and Dorothy, from Ipswich, England, and his son, William Andrews, Jr., was Master of the Rose, of Yarmouth, England.

Thomas Andrews in Fairfield, 1666, and probably his brother, John Andrews, was a representative of Fairfield, October, 1669, in the State Legislature. Thomas married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Porter, of Farmington, and his estate was settled at Probate in New Haven long after death.

Jedediah Andrews was in Dover, New Hampshire, 1656, and had a son Joseph.

Hannah Andrews married, 23d November, 1665, Captain John Peabody, of Boxford, Mass.

Ruth Andrews married, February, 1682, in Hingham, Mass., Ambrose Low.

Ruth Andrews, of Andover, Mass., married, 9th March, 1682, Edward Phelps.

Thomas Andrews, of Dorchester, Mass., had a wife, Ann. He died 20th May, 1678, but his age is not given. He had a son, Thomas Andrews, Jr., baptized 23d June, 1639, who married Phebe Gourd. He had also a daughter, Susanna, who married William Hopkins, and removed to Roxbury. This Thomas, the settler, had, 17th December, 1634, three acres of land granted him by the town, near his house.

The name of Edward Andrews first appears in Hartford, 1655, and he located in East Hartford, was sworn freeman 1657; had 1st, Edward, who died unmarried, 2d, Solomon, who married Elizabeth, dau. of Thwait Strickland, 1707, and had one child, Mary, born 23d Jan., 1708, and bap. 18th July, 1708; 3d Mary, 4th, Sarah, who married, 1673, Henry Treat, son of Matthew. John Andrews of the Ch. in Danvers, Mass., died of consumption 30 May, 1693. Mr. Jedediah Andrews and Mr. John Robinson were in 1698, Aug. 25, recommended as mission-

1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what consumers want and need. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a product that meets that need.

2. The second step is to create a prototype of the product. This involves designing and building a small-scale version of the product that can be used to test the concept and gather feedback from potential customers. The prototype is used to evaluate the feasibility of the product and to make any necessary adjustments.

3. The third step is to conduct a pilot test of the product. This involves distributing the product to a small group of customers and monitoring their reactions. The pilot test is used to gather feedback on the product's performance, usability, and overall appeal. This feedback is used to make any necessary adjustments to the product before it is launched.

4. The fourth step is to launch the product. This involves distributing the product to a larger group of customers and monitoring its performance in the market. The launch is used to evaluate the product's overall success and to make any necessary adjustments to the marketing strategy. Once the product is launched, the company continues to monitor its performance and make any necessary adjustments to ensure its long-term success.

5. The fifth step is to evaluate the product's performance. This involves analyzing sales data, customer feedback, and other metrics to determine the product's overall success. The evaluation is used to identify areas for improvement and to make any necessary adjustments to the product or marketing strategy. Once the product's performance is evaluated, the company can decide whether to continue to invest in the product or to discontinue it.

6. The sixth step is to discontinue the product. This involves removing the product from the market and discontinuing its production. The discontinuation is used to free up resources for other products and to ensure that the company's focus remains on its core products. Once the product is discontinued, the company can evaluate its overall performance and make any necessary adjustments to its product line.

7. The seventh step is to evaluate the overall success of the product. This involves analyzing the product's performance, customer feedback, and other metrics to determine its overall success. The evaluation is used to identify areas for improvement and to make any necessary adjustments to the product or marketing strategy. Once the product's overall success is evaluated, the company can decide whether to continue to invest in the product or to discontinue it.

aries to Pennsylvania by Rev. Increase and Cotton Mather, and five other ministers subscribing. This Edward Grannis above was a shoe-maker, and removed from Hartford to Hadley, Mass., and from there, 1677, to New Haven, Ct. His first wife having died, he married 1662 Hannah, dau. of John Wakefield of New Haven. (See Hist. of Hadley.) [One Edward Andrews made free 1655 at Warwick, R. I.] The above Rev. Jedediah Andrews was son of Capt. Thos., of Hingham, who perished of small pox in Sir Wm. Phip's extravagant expedition vs. Quebec, 1690; the son Jedediah was born 7 July, 1674. Francis Andrews of Hartford, had land there, 1689, said to be a brother of John, of Farmington; he had son John bap. 27 Sep., 1646, and son Thomas bap. 2d Jan., 1648, both at Hartford, Ct., but he removed to Fairfield, where he was a landholder, and where his will was proved in probate court, 5 May, 1662—3, in which he gave son John, and his son Thos., each a gun, etc.; gave his son Jeremiah a "Ripon Staff" and 20 s.; to his son Abraham 20 s. He also gave his daughters Elizabeth, Mary, Hester, Rebecca and Ruth 10 s. each at 18 years of age. He gave John Crampton, hus. of his dau. Hannah, 3 roods of land, and gave his grand-dau. Hannah 10 s., to be improved till she is 18 years of age. A query has arisen about this "Ripon Staff." Was the father a Beadle in the town of Ripon, Eng., and brought this staff with him? It is said to be a badge of office in the Ch. of Eng. Abraham, son of Francis of Hartford and Fairfield above, removed to Waterbury, Ct., and was there a man of some note, being one of the first Townsmen, or Selectmen with Timothy Stanley, and held that position many years. He was called Abraham Andrews, Sen., to distinguish him from his first cousin Abraham, son of John of Farmington, who also located in Waterbury, and was called the cooper from his trade. Abraham Sen., was by trade a tanner, and married Rebecca, dau. of John Carrington; they had 8 children, and he died in 1729. Their children were Rebecca, Mary, Hannah, Abraham, Sarah, Rachel, John, Thomas. The father, Abraham, the tanner, was town surveyor in 1700, and afterwards Deputy to the Gen. Court, 1712. Both Hinman and Savage have mixed up these Abrahams, of whom there were, with sons, at least four in the town of Waterbury at the same time, or date.

William Andrews, an early settler of New Haven, Ct., came in the James, of London (Wm. Cooper, Master). He was a native of Hampworth, Eng., and shipped about 6 April, 1635, from Hampton, Eng., with some 53 others, many of whom had wife and children with them. In 1643 had a family of eight persons (not including servants). In 1642 his daughters are spoken of in such a way as to show them 12 to 15 yrs. of age. 4th June, 1689, he was chosen one of twelve to select the seven pillars of the Church to order its foundation. He was one of the sixty-three who met in Elder Robert Newman's barn, which stood on the site of Noah Webster's place, and formed the constitution of Quinnipiac or New Haven Colony. In 1643 his estate was valued at £150. He was a carpenter by trade and occupation. In 1644 he contracted to build and finish the first meeting-house of New Haven; some of his tools brought from Eng. are still (1871) in the possession of his descendents at East Haven, Ct. Bro. Andrews had the 5th middle seat in the meeting house, and is then, 1646, called a widower, but 7th Dec., 1665, he 2d married Anna Gibbard, the widow of Thos. and daughter of Wm. Tapp, who was Colonial Secretary 1657. He was owner of "South End," East Haven, and built the bridge on "Stony Creek," on the road to Totoket, and charged the town of New Haven £3, 8 s. 9 d. He was agent for Capt. Thos. Clark of Boston, in the Iron Works of East Haven, at "Stony River." In 1647 he wished to lay down the "Ordinary," (Tavern—Ed.) his wife being unwilling to keep it; the town seemed to be reluctant and he continued it in 1648. He was the progenitor of a numerous race, industrious and respectable, and some of them highly distinguished.

He probably had two sons, Wm. and Samuel, born in Eng., also Jane and two other daughters, (names not known) and a son Nathan was baptized in New Haven, 17 Nov., 1639, and was probably born in this country; these were children by his first wife, whose name is unknown, or time of her death. Wm. Andrews, the father, was one of a Committee 5 Oct., 1669 to settle the line between New Haven and Branford. His inventory was taken June, 1676, and was substantially as follows, to wit:—

Administration was granted to the widow Anne. In 1680, June 10th, Anne Andrews, widow of William, for the consideration of £75, sold to Edward Dorman and John — 64 acres of land, and calls William Andrews her last husband. In 1681, Mar. 4th, Anne Andrews sold to her son, Timothy Gibbard, 4½ acres of land in the Yorkshire quarter. In 1694, June 4th, the same Anne Andrews sold one-third of a house. She died 1701, and the inventory of her estate was taken 27th of March of the same year. It amounted to £120 2s.; and Capt. Nathan Andrews was one of the appraisers of the estate. This Capt. Nathan and his elder brother Samuel, located spring of 1670 (while their father was yet living), in New Haven plantations, after called Wallingford, where they raised large families, and aided in laying the foundation of many generations in the church and school-house. The history of these descendants is somewhat familiar to me and might be continued here through the whole race, but for a different, and far better arrangement which has been in contemplation several years, namely, to publish a genealogical history of the family in all its branches and extent, in one complete and distinct book. Ever since the Andrews family "Gathering" in August, 1860, at Wallingford, Conn., until the close of the year 1869, the author of this work expected to embrace the family of William of New Haven in a second volume of this Memorial, and thus publish two volumes in one; but the families of John, the progenitor of my own race, proving to be much more numerous than was anticipated, wholly precluded the idea, and the plan was reluctantly abandoned to the great disappointment of many of that race with whom I had corresponded. The reasons for adopting the plan of two distinct books, one for each tribe or race, are obvious at one moment's reflection; the plan of two volumes in one book would have made the work too large and costly for general distribution. And worse still it would have taxed each purchaser with the price of half a book he did not want. The present design of the author is (should his life be spared and his health preserved), to publish a genealogical history of William Andrews of New Haven and his descendants, provided the living members of that race offer suitable encouragement to the enterprise. I certainly have no cause to distrust their liberality since their demonstration in August, 1860, at Wallingford, when and where some four hundred persons of the name and those nearly connected with the name of Andrews, gathered at the new hall in that pleasant town, and enjoyed the hospitality of the Andrews of the place. Almost every State in the Union, as well as the Canadas and New Brunswick, was there represented personally or by letter.

Notices of this gathering had been given by the press, private invitations had been extended, and printed circulars sent to all persons known to the projectors of the meeting. Benjamin Harvey Andrews, Esq., of Waterbury, Conn., was appointed Chairman, and Capt. Orrin Andrews of Wallingford, Secretary. Doctor John Andrews and Col. Ira Andrews, both of Wallingford, and both very aged and honorable, were then living and had seats on the platform, where were also Hon. Samuel George Andrews of Rochester, New York, Member of Congress, 1857-59. Ali Andrews of East Bridgeport, Rev. William Watson Andrews of Wethersfield, Conn., who opened the family gathering with a very appropriate prayer, Doctor Solomon Andrews of Perth Amboy, New Jersey, Alfred

Andrews of New Britain, Conn., author of this work, a descendant of John the Settler, 1640, who read a poem on the occasion. The above and many others made off-hand speeches and welcomes, a band of music was in attendance, a feast of entertainment was provided for all, and the day was happily spent in greetings and congratulations. The exercises and enjoyments of the occasion were very reluctantly brought to a close by a promptu song made for the occasion on the inspiration of the hour, by Rev. Edwin Norton Andrews of New Britain, and sung to the tune of "Old Lang Syne." By a vote of the Convention, Ali Andrews of Bridgeport, and Alfred Andrews of New Britain, were requested to publish a history of the meeting with such a genealogy of the race as could be made; but they little knew what they were asking us to do,—for after spending some fifteen years time and much money on one branch of the Andrews race, I am not yet prepared to make it either full, complete, or correct. The Convention also proposed to hold another gathering at Meriden the following year, which would probably have been enjoyed had not the war of the Rebellion in the mean time broken out, and necessarily prevented. This meeting is technically known and spoken of as the "Wallingford Gathering;" it forms an epoch in the history of the Andrews of long and pleasant memory. And here I ought to say, and it gives me great pleasure to state, that Gad Andrews, Esq., of Southington, Conn., an antiquary of much research and experience, a descendant of John the Settler, has by his liberality of time and by an unselfish disposition almost unparalleled, collated and made an Index of almost the whole race of William Andrews the Settler, of New Haven, so that the labor of preparing a genealogy for the press will be greatly facilitated. To aid him in doing this all the papers and letters on the subject belonging to Ali Andrews of Bridgeport, and all the notes I had taken of that family for many years, were put in his hands for examination and helps. Having thus in a plain way stated these facts, I trust the members of that large and respectable family who may chance to read or hear of them will not despair of seeing at some future day a book with the name of William Andrews the Settler, of New Haven, 1639, at the head of his race.

The following historical poem was read on the above described gathering at Wallingford by the author, and is inserted here by the urgent request of many of those present. Also the closing song on that occasion:

Among the first settlers, a long while back,
Was one William Andrews, of Quinnipiac,
The name first appears, so wise-acres say,
On the records of Cambridge, near old Boston Bay:
A man of stern virtue, and Godly was he,
Like most of the Pilgrims, that came o'er the sea;
He was one of the twelve, that met with the rest,

To choose seven Pillars, among them the best;
 To order the Church, and lay its foundation,
 For the worship of God, without molestation;
 They met in a barn,* to discuss the Church rules
 With good Mr. Davenport, so versed in the schools,
 Church members admitted, for public control,
 All others dented, for want of a soul,
 This man had a Nathan, he was firm as a rock,
 He came to this† village, a chip of the block;
 He too in Church matters, had honors in store,
 He one of the Pillars, with six worthies more.
 New Haven plantation, by common consent,
 Lay east of the plain, as to Hartford you went,
 A pleasant location, as well you can see,
 With fit elevation, as a village can be,
 Here the Andrews located, a numerous race,
 With bodies erect, and beautiful face,
 The rose on the cheek, as common a mark,
 With them is peculiar, since the days of the Ark;
 At farming they labored, a living to win,
 While they worshiped their God, by ignoring sin.

At "Milking-yard Hill," in "Gold-parlor Mine,"
 The place is well known, and is near the town line.
 To better his fortune, one Samuel wrought,
 But abandoned the project, for he got ne'er a groat.

This tribe of New Haven, so famous of yore,
 Has furnished for Congress, and Pulpit a score,
 We come here to-day, our cousins to see,
 We come from the country, the home of the free,
 We appreciate your kindness, their Beauty admire,
 And own that such daughters, are worthy their sire;
 We greet you with joy, we look high above,
 For the God of our fathers, to crown us with love.

But, where are our Brothers, of Puritan Stock,
 Who come through the woods, while driving their flock?
 Led on by their Hooker, that man of renown,
 Who bowed to Jehovah, but not to the crown,
 A home for their sons, where the Pilgrims could rest,
 And of all the fine meadows, they sought out the best,
 For a family mansion, each built him a hut,
 On that beautiful river, the Connecticut.
 Called first Sucklage, of Indian renown,
 But soon changed its name, to smoother Newtown,
 Sunkquasson ‡ the owner, of lordly domain,
 Sold out to our fathers, for trinkets so vain,
 The present cognomen, is Hartford you know,
 And to rival New Haven, is quite sure to go.

A William, an Edward, and also a Thomas,
 The monument tells, where the sculptors inform us.
 Of the school he was Master, a man of some fame,
 The first on our list who was dub'd with the name,
 He could step to the pulpit as occasion required,
 Of such all expected to preach, when desired,
 A James, and a Francis, and at Tunxis a son,
 And among his descendants, your servant is one.
 With many more names on the list I've no doubt,
 How nearly related, I have never found out.
 This Tunxis, in age, is two hundred and twenty,
 It was famous for Indians, it is now for plenty;

Our name was first there, it was John and his Mary,
 They'd lots of children, but of Indians kept wary;
 From these sprang a race, industrious and brave,
 Some mechanics, some farmers, we trust not one knave,
 Some learned, some wise, but the soldiers were bold,
 For they fought well our battles, so tradition has told,
 For the heads of our tribes, I'm not yet quite specific,
 But this much I know, they were very prolific;
 I know of a pair,* that lived in this State,
 Who in less than three years were parents of eight;
 They sought the good Bible, for names to their sons,
 But sent to Old England to furnish them guns.

The Indians retired, the forest to roam,
 Thus leaving a place for the Yankee a home;
 But first the grim savage, reluctant to go,
 Will try his broad knife on the head of his foe,
 The scalp of the Yankee, to grace the war dance,
 Was sanctioned by England, as well as by France.

These times have gone by, our hills now so green,
 Are covered with Churches, and schools stand between,
 Our valleys luxuriant are covered with corn,
 Showing this a good country in which to be born,
 Our sons rise around us, the strength of the land,
 Our daughters so polished, so fond of the hand,
 They show us their husbands, the pride of their heart,
 They show us their children, and tell us how smart,
 Let our souls flow together, and our hearts fill with love,
 Let parents and children meet hereafter above.

We come here with pleasure, to honor our sires,
 We come here as zealous, to kindle watch-fires,
 Their virtues we cherish, the name near adore,
 And we're looking ahead, for a great many more,
 We are Saxon I ween, from Old England we came,
 But who was our Father, and what was his name?
 Was he well born, and well bred, or, what was his lot?
 In vain is good culture, unless well begot.
 Was he merchant, or farmer, mechanic, or prince?

* Deacon Joshua Andrews of Newington, Ct., and Sybil (Stoddard) his wife, had eight children within the space of 2 yrs. 4 mo. and 28 days. See No. (82).

Methinks he was busy, for his race have been since;
 Was it Richard of Cheapside, name nearly forgot,
 Or, Bishop of Winchester, good Lancelot?
 Give us pedigree hunters, to search out the time
 When the heads of our tribes,* came over the brine,
 Their homes to discover, their names to collate,
 Their birth, and their marriage, and give us the date,
 To show their connection, if such was the fact,
 Whether Brothers, or Cousins, before the Stamp Act,
 Our pedigree show, in a well printed book,
 That we may thus see, how our families look;
 And now my dear friends, to aid in this matter,
 Will you fork o'er the dough, † when we carry the platter.

Closing hymn at "Wallingford Gathering," air "Auld Lang Syne," composed for the occasion by Edwin Norton Andrews, then of Amherst College, now (1871) Rev. E. N. Andrews, of Chicago.

1. Let echoes ring, while now we sing,
 In chorus loud and long,
 Of all on earth, who by their birth,
 With us to-day belong.

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
 And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
 While we proclaim the Andrews name,
 With song, and flowing rhyme.

2. The Andrews crew are brave and true,
 By etymology, ‡
 And so are we, and e'er shall be
 In genealogy.

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
 And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
 While we proclaim the Andrews name,
 With song, and flowing rhyme.

3. Ships of our line, you often find,
 In every harbor stored,
 But favoring gales, have turned our sails,
 To-day, for Wallingford.

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
 And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
 While we proclaim the Andrews name,
 With song, and flowing rhyme.

4. We gather here, from far and near,
 The old, as well as young,
 Of many trades, and many grades,
 But of one mind and tongue.

*Each person of the eighth generation must of necessity have 256 ancestors, and of the ninth generation 512.

And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
While we proclaim the Andrews name,
With song and flowing rhyme.

5. We are the sons of noble ones,
Our fathers, where are they?
For us they fought, for us they sought
What e'er we find to-day.

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
While we proclaim the Andrews name,
With song and flowing rhyme.

6. O let them not be e'er forgot,
But may we all live on,
Remembering well, where'er we dwell,
The William,* and the John.*

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
While we proclaim the Andrews name,
With song and flowing rhyme.

7. And now we'll raise a hymn of praise,
To him who brings us here,
Who all our days his love displays,
And grants us this good cheer.

Chorus. For here we meet, our friends to greet,
And talk of "Auld Lang Syne,"
While we proclaim the Andrews name,
With song and flowing rhyme.

Samuel Andrews, of the Custom House in Boston now, (1871) is a descendant of Thos. in Hingham, 1635, and his son Joseph. Nathan J. Andrews, of Boston, and Elizabeth Bliss, of Plymouth, married 19 Sept., 1849. Gen. Samuel Andrews, a resident of Boston, 1850 and 1871. Lois Andrews, of Hartford, married 4 May, 1779, Wm. Whiting. She died 17 Jan. 1829, æ. 68 years. Mrs. Harriet C. Andrews, of New Haven, daughter of Capt. John Bragg, died 28 Dec. 1856, æ. 46 years, 9 mo. David A. Andrews, born in N. C. 1760; had son John born there, 1780. Henry D. Andrews, and his brother, Jonathan W., of London, Ind., and Jordon Andrews, of Crawford Co., in that State, are descendants of David A. of North Carolina. Joel W. Andrews, of Norristown, Pa., is son of Benajah, who was son of Edward, who was son of Edward Andrews, Sen., all Friends, or Quakers, whose ancestors came to Philadelphia with William Penn. Thos. C. Andrews, of Morestown, and Charles Andrews, of Fellansha, are of this family, and one, Peter Andrews, who resided in Philadelphia. He and his wife were both preachers in the Friend's Society. There was a Jeremiah, also, of this Quaker family. The wife of Benajah, above, was Mary Downs, born in N. J., and died in her 87th year. Richard Andrews, of Kendallville, Ind., is a son of Jesse and his wife Betsey (Benjamin) Andrews, and a grandson of Titus Herman Andrews, of Stillwater, Saratoga Co., N. Y. His wife was Eunice Everett. They had 1, Denison; 2, Clymena; 3, Polly; 4, Sally; 5, Jesse; 6, Lois. This Jesse, and wife Betsey had 14 children, most of them born at Stillwater, N. Y. Richard, above, was their fifth child, and he married 1st Nov., 1834, at Huron Co., Ohio, Amy Ann Brooks. They had issue, viz: 1, Angeline; 2, Cornelia; 3, Henry; 4, Ellen; and 5, Lewis. The progenitor of this family is unknown to them or me.

George H. Andrews, of Newark, N. J., is a son of Geo. W. Andrews, b. 1806, and married, 1840, Julia Ann Jones, a descendant of the Jones family of New Haven and Southington, Conn. His grandfather's name was Jonathan Andruss, and his first wife, Rhoda Meeker, and his second, Charity Meeker, and his great grandfather's name was Timothy Address (so spelled 1734), at his birth. He married, 1761, Rachel Eagles, of Scottish origin.

Rebecca Andrews, daughter of Francis, of Hartford, and Fairfield, Conn. Married 7th July, 1678, Samuel Benedict, of Norwalk, Conn. He, with others, purchased, 1685, the plantation which made Danbury.

Thomas Andrews, second son of Francis, of Hartford and Fairfield, was baptized in Hartford, 1648. Jan. 2d, married Elizabeth, da. of Robert Porter, of Farmington, who was born 11 Jan. 1653-4, and was baptized there in Jan. 1653-4. They were located at Milford, Conn., 1675 to 1700. Had twins, Hannah and Mary, who were brought to Farmington, and baptized 31st May, 1685, (the record says by virtue of communion of Charity.) Miss Caulkins, in her history of Norwich, says that Jeremiah Andrews admitted freeman there 7th May, 1714, and John Andrews, admitted 1716, were probably sons of Francis above, but Savage locates Jeremiah at Bedford, and the town record of Fairfield indicates that John, eldest son of Francis resided there, and had John, jun., born 24 Oct., 1679, and Sarah, born 12 Jan., 1680.

Samuel Andrews born 1758, at Fairfield, Conn., a descendant of Francis, (prob.) married Elizabeth Meriam. They had 11 sons, all living at one time in the State of New York, viz., Samuel W., John S., William, Andrew, Simon, Joseph, Abraham, Burr, Hannah, Daniel, James, Benjamin. They were all well-to-do, and honest.

Hannah Andrews, of Fairfield, daughter of Francis, of that town, married John Crompton there about 1661, and had daughter Hannah born before the death of its grandfather, Francis Andrews, A. D. 1662-3, for the child had 10s. given it by his will, to be improved till she is 18 years. He also gave, in the same instrument, to his daughter Hannah Crampton, 8 roods of land. This John Crampton was a soldier in Phillips' War, and in 1672 is called of Norwalk. The child Hannah, A. D. 1680, March 5, married Benjamin Scribner.

Rev. E. B. Huntington, in History of Stamford, makes one Jeremiah Andrews, of that town, to be a Revolutionary pensioner. Came there from Stratford, after 1687, married 8 Sept., 1697, Hannah Ambler, a widow, and had John, born 31 Jan., 1700; Ann, 3d Aug., 1702; and Jeremiah, jun., 5 Dec., 1705. He had a tax list of £96, 18s. A. D. 1701. At Stamford, probably this Jeremiah Andrews, jun., was the pensioner.

Capt. Andrews came from Norwich, Norfolk Co., England, early 1635, as owner and master of ship "Angel Gabriel." Richard Mather, in his narrative of his voyage in the James, says they came in company part of the way, and that many godly persons were on board of the ship. This Capt. Andrews had a sister Mary, who was the wife of Robert Burnham. Their 3 boys, John, Thomas, and Robert, it is said were put in charge of their Uncle Andrews, master of the ship "Angel Gabriel," which was cast away at Tammaquid, in Maine, in a terrible storm, 15 Aug. 1635, after which loss Capt. Andrews settled with his 3 nephews at Chebacco, in Massachusetts Bay.

Rufus F. Andrews, A. D. 1861, was elected a member of the New England Society, in the city of N. Y. William Austin Andrews, now, 1871, a joiner and builder in New Britain, Conn., is from East Haddam, son of Ephraim, the ship carpenter, and grandson of Spencer. They are descendants of Mr. William, the School Master of Hartford. He, Wm. Austin, b. 21 April, 1841, married 2d December, 1860. Emma Pettibone, of Granby, Conn., had a son Frederic Nelson, b. 19 Oct. 1862, and a daughter, Mary Emma, born 14 Aug., 1868, at New Britain.

William Andrews, of Hartford, Conn., had a son William, who married a Miss Bull, and located in Hartford. He was born 28 Oct., 1740, and died 1st May, 1815. Their children were Betsey, Nathaniel, William, Roswell, Horace, Sally, and Abigail. Date of his Will, 8th April, 1813. Gave Horace, his son, his North Stone Pit, under Rocky Hill, Gave his grand-son Horace, son of Horace, one acre of land under Rocky Hill. Gave his daughter Sarah, wife of Calvin Seymour, gave Abigail, wife of Thomas Wells (of Wethersfield), gave Elizabeth, wife Chauncey Barnard, $100 each, to be paid in two years. Item, I give Nathaniel, my eldest son, all the remainder of my estate, of every kind, and make him sole executor of this, my last Will and Testament. ford, Conn., and some of his descendants are found there now, 1871. Nathaniel, the executor of his father's Will, married Mary, daughter of Freeman Seymour, of Hartford, and had born Mary, Roswell, Emeline, William, Hannah, Nathaniel, Huldah, Henry, and Frances. These families claim to be descendants, in direct line, of Mr. William Andrews, the School Master, 1639, in Hartford. A portion of the land known on the old records, as the "Ox Pasture," fell into the possession of this family, and the above William, who married Miss Bull, kept a tavern in the days of the Revolutionary War, on the premises west of Rocky Hill, and sold 20 head of fat cattle to the government, and took for pay continental currency, which proved worthless—so tradition, handed down in the family.

Stephen Pearl Andrews, of Seattle, Washington Territory, born 20th April, 1839, at Chicopee Falls, Mass., to Thurston Peter Andrews and his wife Amintia D. Holmes. He is a tin and stove dealer in the city of Seattle, under the firm of Stewart & Andrews. Married June, 1870, Nellie Maria, daughter of Hiram Burnett, of Slaterville, R. I. Born there 4th March, 1847. He is a nephew of, and named after Stephen Pearl Andrews, Esq., of N. Y., phonographer. Sarah, daughter of Edward Andrews, of Hartford, married about 1673, Henry Treat, of that town. He died 1681. They had issue, viz: Sarah, born 1674, and a son, Matthias, born 1676.

The following curious facts are taken from a copy of the British Volunteer, of 3d Sept., 1814, and although the name has no s for its termination, yet nothing positive is known from this about the connection. Jonathan Andrew, of Waterhouse, Daisy Nook, in the Parish of Ashton, under Lyne, in Lancashire Co., was, with his 9 sons, employed at the above date, by Lieut. Col. Smith, to mow some grass for hay, the father taking the lead, and the sons following according to seniority. When the job was done, the father and his sons were each weighed, measured, and their ages taken with the following result, viz:—

the same time, the fact that the same person can be both a subject and an object of a relation is not a contradiction. For example, a person can be both a subject and an object of a relation of self-love. This is not a contradiction because the relation is not self-contradictory.

Similarly, a person can be both a subject and an object of a relation of self-hatred. This is not a contradiction because the relation is not self-contradictory. The fact that a person can be both a subject and an object of a relation does not imply that the relation is self-contradictory.

Therefore, the fact that a person can be both a subject and an object of a relation does not imply that the relation is self-contradictory. The relation is self-contradictory only if it is a relation of self-love or self-hatred.

FIRST GENERATION.

GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND MARY ANDRUS, OF FARMINGTON, IN HARTFORD COUNTY, CONNECTICUT, IN NEW ENGLAND—UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

John Andrus was one of the early settlers, and in 1672 one of the 84 Proprietors of the ancient town of Tunxis, named afterwards "farmingtowne," Tunxis being then as much a name of a tribe of Indians, as it was of the river, and lands they occupied, and claimed as Proprietors.

The authority under which these English planters succeeded the Indians in this beautiful locality, is best set forth by the following Charter, granting them town privileges, corporate capacities, and plantation liberties, as follows:—

by Hez. Wyllys Secret'y

The reader will observe by the above Charter, that this Plantation was some 15 miles square—giving plenty of room to spread themselves, which has been literally done in making 7 towns from this one. It soon made a prominent, and influential town, was attractive to farmers for its natural meadows, and alluvial bottoms. The Tunxis river overflowed its banks every year, making rich meadows, and plenty of hay for their stock.

John Andrews (so spelled on the earliest land records) was a plain farmer, with common intelligence, had his farm homestead on the east side of the river, near to where the canal aqueduct (1825) was made, and is about 2 miles north of the village of Farmington, the locality now, 1871, called Waterville, and the farm has remained in the possession of his direct descendants to this date, 1871. The name of his wife was Mary, who united with the church there 2d April, 1654, with her sons, then under the age of 13 years, viz. Abraham, age 6 years 3 months; Daniel, 3 years 10 months; Joseph, 2 years 3 months, and her daughter, Rachel, was baptized 9th of the same month. John Andrus, sen., the father of the family, joined the Congregational Church of Farmington, 9th May, 1658, and on the 16th day of May, 1658, were baptized Mary, in her 14th year, John, about 13 years, and Hannah Andrews, about 11 years old. In a list of 42 families in full communion of the church in 1679, which list seems to be graded, and ranked in reference to "dignity and standing," John and Mary Andrews are No. 14 in the list of enumeration, showing a rank among the first third. This early settler of Tunxis was a near neighbor of Dea. Isaac Moore, and Capt. John Standley, and is occasionally referred to, as associated with one or both of them in public business. He is referred to in an Indian deed of land, in "matetacoke to Wm. Lewis and Samuel Steele, 8 Feb. 1657, and wit. by John Steel, that is to say the hill from whence John Standley and John Andrews brought the "Black lead," and all the land within eight mylle of that Hill* on every side to dig and carry away what they will, and to build on it for the use of them that labor there, and not otherwise to improve the land." This deed is signed by the mark of Kepaquamp, Querrimus, and Mataneage. This shows that John Andrews was one of the bold explorers of that early settlement, and that he and his associate, Capt. John Standley, actually brought from that locality real "black lead," or what they and the town of Farmington supposed to be such.

John Andrews made free in Hartford by Gen. Court, 20th May, 1658.

"John Andrews died 1681, and Mary, ye aged wife of John Andrews, May, 1694."

John Andrews and Joseph Andrews were witnesses to a deed of lands in Simsbury, by 13 Indians, 1680, Book 1st, Land Records of the State, 105th page; so says Phelps, in his History of that town. The probability is that these Indians met at the dwelling house of John Andrews, sen. (the locality now, 1871, called Waterville,) when the deed was executed, one year before he died. John, jun. is supposed to be then living in Hartford, so that the witnesses were doubtless John, sen. and his fourth son, Joseph. John the settler was a landholder in Hartford, as appears by a deed of Asahel, his great-grandson, dated 1758, at Mnsacoe, or Simsbury, of lands in Hartford, once owned by John his father, and also by his grandfather John. That he was a large landholder appears from entries in the form of a memorandum on the first book of land records, dated as an entry Feb. 1665. (As the first records of the town were burned) I take this entry to be done at a later or subsequent date to the fire, at one time, and in one hand, as follows, viz:

Lands belonging to John Andrews, (so spelled) of Farmington, in the jurisdiction of Connecticut, in New England, and to his heirs forever, viz., One parcel of land on which his dwelling-house now standeth, with their yards and gardens, containing eight acres, four acres of which he bought of Thomas Upson, and abuts on the river on the west, on highway east, on Thomas Webster's land, south, and on John Steele, north.

One parcel in second meadow, containing 16 acres, 8 acres of which he bought of Thomas Upson, and abuts on river west, on common land east, on John Lee, south, and on common swamp, north.

One parcel of 12 acres, 6 of which he bought of Thomas Upson; it is plow land and upland.

One parcel of land on third meadow, containing 5 acres, and abuts west on the river, &c.

One parcel containing 10 acres of upland, which the town gave him, and abuts on highway leading to the mountain.

One parcel of 8 acres, with a messuage or tenement thereon, he bought of Moses Venters, of Farmington; it abuts west on the river.

One parcel of wood-land, containing four acres, given him by the town, and abuts west on John Lee's land.

A. D. 1673 was divided to him by the proprietors, 93 acres.

NOTE. The above are mere specimens of lands entered to John Andrews on the town records of lands in Farmington, Ct.

Copy of the original Will of John Andrews, sen., of Farmington.

"I John Andrews being grown aged, and many weaknesses attending of me from time to time, and now at this present it pleaseth the most high to visit me with more than ordinary weakness, yet through the good hand of God upon me, I have at this present the perfect use of my understanding, now I do think it meet to set that little at a stay, as I am able that God hath given me; all my lawful debts being discharged, I dispose of my estate as followeth:

Item. I give and bequeath unto my dear and loving wife Mary Andrews, the new end of my dwelling house, and the seller under, for her use and comfort as long as it shall please God to continue her natural life; I do also give her the use of half my orchard, the fruit of it as long as she liveth; moreover I do give and bequeath unto my dear and loving wife, my feather bed, with all the furniture belonging to it, and when it shall please God to end her natural life my mind is that she shall have liberty to dispose of it to whom she please.

Item. I do give unto my son Benjamin Andrews, my whole house and barn and home lot, after my loving wife's decease. My mind is that my son Benjamin shall possess after my decease half my house and my home lot and barn wholly for his to possess, as also the household stuff, reserving that liberty that my wife shall use that she shall need.

Item. I give to my son Benjamin my meadow lot, excepting two acres at the lower end of it, as also two cows to my son Benjamin, and one to my loving wife, yet moreover I give to my son Benjamin Andrews, my splayed mare, and my crown mare, and my two youngest working bullocks, and my cart, and plow, and plow-irons, harrow, plow-chains, horse chains, half a timber chain, and all my tackling that belongs to my teame, and my will is that my son Benjamin shall have these things above mentioned upon that condition, that he maintayne his dear mother comfortably, so long as her natural life continueth, and if it so fall out that my loving wife doth want a comfortable subsistence my will is that she shall have power to sell so much of my meadow land as she shall need to obtain a comfortable livelyhood.

Thus we see above that our progenitors had not only gathered a snug little property for those early times, but were scrupulously careful to have it divided among their children and grand-children in a just and equitable proportion, at their decease. The aged patriarch in writing up his will seemed to be troubled that his debts were so much, £2 6s. 6d.!!! What an insignificant sum, you exclaim. It proves that the early settlers abhorred debts, and were very careful to shun them. I regret exceedingly to be under the necessity of going to press without giving date of the birth of our progenitor, or where born, or the full maiden or family name of his wife, Mary. The supposition is that they were both born in Essex Co., England.

Hartford.

JOHN ANDREWS, JUN., eldest son of John the settler. He lived in Hartford; married ———; had land on Connecticut river, and is called on the record of it John Andrus, son of John Andrus, of Farmington, 20th March, 1676-7; also one piece of land sold him by Gregory Winterton, lying in the ox pasture, 10 acres more or less, and is bounded on the highway leading to Wethersfield, on the west, on John Cole's land on the south, and on Thomas Marshal's land on the north, and on land of John White, east. He the said Andrews is to maintain the fence belonging to 16 acres of said Winterton's land lying in the south meadow, in consideration; 15th Feb. 1698-9 he was administrator of the insolvent estate of his deceased son Joseph, who is spoken of in his grandfather's will as living then, 1681, with him in Farmington. Joseph's estate was only £9 11s. 11d. and his father was allowed by the probate court for this service 10 shillings. He died before 1713, aged about 78. In consequence of very limited records of the town of Hartford at this early period, little is found concerning its inhabitants. The name of John Andrus' wife does not appear.

nah, Esther, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Rachel. The widow Rachel died about May, 1725. These children by first wife, viz., John, 12 years old, Mary, 10 years, Hannah, 8 years, Esther, 6 years, Elizabeth, 4 years, Sarah, 3 years, Obadiah, born 1st of October, 1679, were baptized in old Farmington, 21st of March, 1679-80, and Rachel was baptized 6th of May, 1683, in old Farmington. The parents were both members of the church, in Farmington, 1st March, 1679-80, and were the last on the list of 42 families at that date, being probably among the youngest heads of families there and then, all his children it is supposed, by his first wife, Hannah; his second wife was Rachel. He was made free 1669, and in 1673 he drew in the division of lands in Farmington and subsequently 365 acres, (so says Rev. Abner Morse, in his genealogy of the Richards family.) A. D. 1682, Jan. 29th, he deeded to Daniel Andrews, sen., two acres on which his dwelling-house stands; it abuts east, west, and north on highway, and south on "meeting-house yard," next north of the present meeting house in Farmington. This Daniel Andrews, sen., was a brother of his first wife, and it will be observed that Richards was one of the men who went to Mattatuck from Farmington, where he first located next north of the church.

4. Farmington and Waterbury.

ABRAHAM, second son of John and Mary, the settlers, married about 1682, Sarah, daughter of Robert Porter, of Farmington, and his wife Mary, of Thomas Scott, of Hartford, born 20th of December, 1657, and baptized 1658; she joined the church at Farmington, full communion, 15th of July, 1683, then living in Waterbury, and then was called Sarah Andrus, daughter of Robert Porter, and wife of Abraham Andrus, and so had her children baptized in Farmington. In 1672 he was one of the 84 proprietors of the divisions of land in Farmington, and had 8th of Jan., 1673, 35 acres divided to him by the proprietors. In Oct., 1673, he was one of the petitioners to the General Court of Connecticut Colony, to have Mattatuck* or Waterbury made a plantation. He removed there

* As the settler, John Andrus, sen., and his son Abraham were both interested in the settlement of (Mattatuck,) Waterbury, I here present some notes from a private memorandum of Deacon John Stanley, of Farmington, Conn., who was also interested in the purchase and settlement of the same plantation, which throws some light on these early transactions, viz :

"At a General Court held at Hartford, October ye ninth, 1673, in answer to the petition of several of the inhabitants of the town of Farmington, that Mattatuck, that those lands might be granted for a plantation, this court have seen cause to order that those lands may be viewed between this and the court in May next, whether it will be fit to make a plantation. The committee appointed are Lieut. Thomas Bull, Lieut. Robert Webster, and Daniel Prato."

"The Committee appointed by the General Court for the viewing of Mattatuck, return that they judge it a suitable place to accommodate thirty inhabitants."

[The committee say 30 inhabitants, probably they meant 30 families, for they secured 31 heads of families to start the colony. The city and town of Waterbury now June, 1870, contains a population of 13,639.]

1678, and is on their record called Cooper, from his trade, and to distinguish him from Abraham, son of Francis, (who came there from Fairfield, and is supposed to be a first cousin.) His house lot of two acres was where the center of the present city, 1871, is, viz. corner of Main and Bank

"At a Court held at Hartford, May the 14th, 1674, this court nominat and appoint Maj. John Talcott, Lieut. Robert Webster, Lieut. Nicolas Olmsted, Ensign Samuel Steel, Ensign John Wadsworth, to be a comity to regulat and order the settling the bounds of a plantation at Mattatuck, in the most suitable way that may be."

On the 6th June, 1674, the committee for the settlement of Mattatuck, drew up certain articles, eight in number, viz., "Articles agreed upon and concluded by us whose names are hereunder written, the committee for settling a plantation at Mattatuck as followeth."

At the close of the articles is the following: "We whose names are underwritten do engage a faithful submission to, and performance of the foregoing articles, as witness our hands this 6th day of June, in the year 1674."

Farmington.

DANIEL, third son of John and Mary the settlers. He lived in Farmington, married, (not known who or when.) In 1672 was recognized as one of the 84 proprietors, and received a division of the lands on his £44 taxable estate. He united with the church at Farmington, the 24th of May, 1692; he died 16th of April, 1731, in his 82d year. His name occasionally appears on the town record as engaged in public business; was one of the "townsmen" 1696 and later; was often employed in the settlement of estates, &c. In 1702 the General Assembly having been informed that great differences have arisen in Farmington about the choice of town officers, confirm the appointment of Mr. John Hooker, Samuel Gridley, John Wadsworth, Samuel Cowles, and Daniel Andross. He was a large landholder, as appears from the land records at Farmington, where under date of 12th Jan., 1674, are entered eleven parcels of land located in different parts of the town, one of which is thus described as being purchased of Obadiah Richards, the deed dated 29th Jan., 1682, containing two acres on which his dwelling-house stands, abutting east, west, and north on highway, and south on "meeting-house yard." Some of the

6th. And it is also agreed that every one to whom allotments are granted shall personally take up his residence as an inhabitant at Mattatuck in his own house within the terme of four years after the date hereof, and upon failure or default shall forfeit all his lands and allotments at Mattatuck, to be improved as aforesaid by the committee.

7th. It is further considered that every person that shall be possessed of lands at the said Mattatuck, shall inhabit and dwell there in his own house for the time and term of four years after he hath built according to the tenor and true meaning of the fourth article, and until the said four years be ended no person shall have power to make any alienation or sale of the aforesaid granted lands of which he or they are possessed of.

8th. Finally it is determined that all those persons to whom allotments are granted by us the committee shall be engaged to the foregoing articles by a subscription of their names or marks.

* The estate being in debt a petition was brought to the General Assembly 1694, for liberty to sell real estate, which petition was granted, and the probate court at Hartford ordered that place which her deceased husband, Abraham Andrus, had bought but not paid for, to be sold; it was bought back by her brother Porter, of whom it was purchased.

Farmington, Newington, Ct.

JOSEPH, fourth son of John the settler, and his wife Mary, born 26th of May, 1651, at Farmington, Ct.; baptized there 2d of April, 1654; married about 1677, Rebecca ———. They located about the centre of Newington, but at what date is now unknown; he seems to have a tax list there in 1693, in the town of Wethersfield, (of which Newington was a parish, and so remains up to this date, 1871.) The first land of his found on record was given him by vote of the town 19th of March, 1683-4, a small piece near his mill, upon which to build a house and barn. A. D. 1684, March 26th, he bought 16 acres of John and Joseph Riley, the 94th lot on "Cow-plane;" it butts north and south on said Joseph's land, which shows he held land there previous to that date. He had common lands distributed to him on his list of 1693. He purchased 24th Sept., 1702, for £44, of Elizabeth, (probably the widow of Phineas Wilson, of Hartford, late then a merchant there, deceased,) two acres of land at a place vulgarly called "Cow-plane," with a dwelling-house and saw-mill thereon, together with a timber-chain and all the appurtenances of said house and saw-mill; the said two acres is bounded east on said Joseph's land, and on common land west, and north and south with the pondage belonging to said mill. He also bought, 1701, 25 acres of Abram Williams, in the west division, on Farmington line; 12th August, 1695, he bought 12 acres, the 95th lot in Wethersfield, west division, of Jonathan Deming. He also had 40 acres on the Middletown path in Farmington, by will of his father. He was evidently a large landholder, and probably rented the mill of Phineas Wilson, the merchant of Hartford, until after his (Wilson's) decease, when he bought it of the widow. He died 27th April, 1706 aged 54 years, eleven months, one day. The widow Rebecca exhibited his will at probate court, 23d May, 1706, to which she and her eldest son, Joseph, were executors. The inventory was made by Nathaniel Stoddard, and John Curtiss, jun.; amount £413 7s. 4d. The estate of the father had scarcely been settled when the mother Rebecca died, and administration was granted to Joseph the son, and the same day, 6th Oct., 1709-10, Caleb, 15 years old, and Ann, 13, chose their brother Joseph for guardian, he giving bonds. The above Joseph Andrews was near neighbor to John Slead, one of the early settlers of Newington, who bought his 52 acre lot, 1681, of Jonathan Riley; it butted west on Farmington line, on which lot he built a new house and mortgaged, 1687, the whole to Phineas Wilson, merchant of Hartford, to secure indebtedness. This Joseph Andrews, senior, had two nephews settled in the south extremity of Newington, and these three Andrus families, with John Slead above, and a man by the name of Hunn, Barber, in his Historical Collections, makes the first settlers of the place. At the close of the revolutionary war, it is said there were 62 persons of the name of Andrews in Newington, but immediately after its close they died and dispersed, so that not one of the name has resided there for many years.

BENJAMIN, youngest child of John and Mary, lived on and inherited the old home of his father in Farmington, on the east side of the river, about two miles north of the village, and near the "canal aqueduct;" married 26th May, 1682, Mary Smith. Both joined the church in Farmington, 3d Jan., 1686-7, and the record says Mary Andrews, wife of Benjamin, and her two sons, Benjamin and John, were baptized 9th Jan., 1686-7. STEPHEN, son of John, of Hartford, and grandson of John and Mary, the settlers. He married 29th March, 1705, Sarah Gillett, at Hartford, and is next found in Glastonbury, where he, 1713, gave a quit-claim deed for a valuable consideration, of all his interest in his father's estate, to his brother John. He owned land in Glastonbury, 1716, (110 acres division by vote of the town, A. D. 1713,) and is said to have come to that town from "Poke Hill" Ferry, near "Wethersfield Folly;" his farm was the same owned and occupied by the late Chauncey Andrews, in the eastern part of the town. He was a school-teacher, 1745; had a portion of the common land set to him, 1757; he had land divided to him 1723, 47 acres "next to Hebron." He was the first clerk of Eastbury school society from 1731 to 1743, when his son Elisha succeeded him. He had a second wife, Prudence Scott. He first located at South Glastonbury, called "Shingle Hollow;" then, 1724, moved to Nipsic, or East Glastonbury. He taught school there 1742. The records in Glastonbury have his name both Andrews and Andrus.

Norwalk.

SARAH, first child and daughter of Abraham Andrews, (cooper,) of Mattituck or Waterbury. She was probably born at Waterbury, but baptized 9th March, 1683, at Farmington. She married Thomas Raymond, of Norwalk, who died about 1748-9, when his will was exhibited by his sons, James and Daniel, executors. In this will he gives his wife Sarah, names his sons, Abraham of Kent, speaks of his sons Comfort, James, Daniel, and Thomas; he gives his grand-children, Benjamin and Seth Raymond; gives to Joseph, James, Benjamin, and Hannah Betts, children he says of my deceased daughter Thankful; gives his granddaughters, Sarah and Rebecca Deforest, daughters of my deceased son, Benjamin Raymond, £10 each.

Danbury.

ABRAHAM ANDREWS, jun., son of Abraham, called cooper, of Waterbury; he was probably born at Waterbury, but was baptized at Farmington, 17th July, 1687. He went to Danbury and settled at a place called "Grassy Plain," about half-way from Danbury to Bethel. A. D. 1714, his father's estate was distributed, and he had a double portion, being the eldest son. He subsequently went to Danbury. He had the homestead of his father, at the corner of Main and Bank streets, in the center of the city of Waterbury, now 1869. The Fairfield probate record says he was, A. D. 1735, appointed guardian to Patience and Aaron Knapp, of Danbury; he was a resident of Danbury 1721, also 1735, and probably 1748-9, for the eldest son of Robert is called Abraham, jun., at that date. It is not known whether he ever had a family; there is a tradition that he visited Waterbury, was taken sick there and died, but no record is found to corroborate it. There is no evidence of his ever being married yet found; had not the early records of Danbury been burned his history would probably have been much fuller, and so we might say of very many others of the early settlers of that beautiful town, so unfortunate in its early history as to be burned by the British.

17.

Danbury.

MARY, third child and second daughter of Abraham Andrews, cooper, of Waterbury, probably born there, but baptized in Farmington, 18th May, 1689. She married James Benedict, of Danbury, who became one of the deacons of the first Congregational church there. His will was presented and proved 23d June, 1761, at probate court in Danbury; calls his wife Mary; gives her one-third of movables, and one-third real estate, to improve during life, and wills her the sole use of the little house we now live in, during life, and liberty to improve such part of the west end of the new house, which my son Thomas has built, as she may need.

Item. I give James, Benjamin, Ezekiah, and Thomas, my sons, Mary, Phebe, Abigail, and Sarah, my daughters, &c. Amount of inventory, £2,461; mentions land in Farming-Town, appraised at £7 10s. (probably lands she inherited of her father's estate, her father being one of the 84 proprietors of that ancient town in the division of lands 1672.) Her husband was probably son of her mother's second husband.

BENJAMIN ANDREWS, the second son of Abraham, the cooper, of Waterbury, born there, and probably died there in youth, for no mention is made of him after the distribution of his father's estate, 1694-5, in which he shared equally with the younger children. But Miss Caulkins, in her History of Norwich, gives a Benjamin Andrus there as an inhabitant, 1715 and she thought Jeremiah, admitted freeman there 1714, was son of Francis, of Fairfield; if so these first cousins might have gone there in company. (This is only however a supposition. Ed.)

19.

Danbury.

ROBERT ANDREWS, third son of Abraham, of Waterbury, born there, posthumous, 1693, married about 1720, Anna Olmsted, of Danbury; he had a military title, sergeant; estate settled 1748-9, and administration granted to Abraham Andrews, jun., eldest son of deceased, and the widow Anna, 6th May, 1748; the appraisers were John Benedict, Ebenezer Hickok, and Benjamin Taylor, and the amount of inventory £3,795 2s. 2d. old tenor, (no will.) The distributors of the estate were Capt. John Benedict, Capt. Ebenezer Hickok, and Capt. Nathaniel Gregory; distributed to widow Anna one-third real estate to use during life, and one-third of moveables forever. To Abraham, the eldest son of deceased, £100 over an equal share, and to Sarah Taylor, daughter of said deceased, £66 over a half-share with her brethren. To Robert, John, Daniel, Thaddeus, and Seth, an equal share, but Sarah's share to be in personal property. Their home at "Grassy Plain"* one and a half miles south of Danbury.

NOTE. The public records of Danbury having been burned by the British, during the war of the Revolution, much is lost, and more is obscure concerning the first settlers of the town.

* This locality of "Grassy Plain," lying about equal distance from the two villages of Danbury and Bethel, was annexed in 1869, to the town of Bethel. The proposition was strongly opposed by Bethel on account of some half dozen liquor saloons located there, Bethel having enforced the prohibitory law, and dried up the sale in their town. Yet the annexation was carried in the legislature, and the authorities of Bethel were ready to pounce on the rummies at once, and closed the traffic at this place also, and thus became the banner town of the state.

Wethersfield.

DANIEL ANDREWS, jun., eldest son of Daniel, of Farmington, born 9th March, 1672, at Farmington, Ct., married 30th Oct., 1707, Mabel, daughter of Jacob Goff, of Wethersfield, and his wife Margery Ingersoll; she born 31st Oct., 1690. They lived near Wethersfield and Farmington town line and about the time of their marriage that part of Farmington was constituted a parish and called "Great Swamp," the church being organized 1712, and their record says Daniel Andrus joined us by letter from Hartford church, 1718. Their house was where Philo Webster's now, 1868 stands, on the summit of the hill, east of the Hartford and New Haven turnpike. He and his brother John gave a bond or note of £50 to Newington, 1720, for liberty to join the Great Swamp society. I think others of their neighbors were included in the list of those bought off, but only these two signed the note. Daniel Andrus and John Root were a special committee to put in galleries to the meeting house of "Great Swamp" society, 1720, which duty was promptly and fully performed. He died 21st Aug., 1748, in his 77th year; buried in "Christian Lane" Cemetery; a red sand-stone shows that his body lies towards the south-west corner. His estate settled by probate court at Hartford; inventory amounted to £1017^s. presented Oct., 1748. This Goff family claimed relationship to Goff the regicide. Mabel the widow died 9th May, 1768, aged 77 years, six months, nine days.

This last woman became the mother of nearly all the Cowles' of Farmington, as progenitor.

JOSEPH ANDREWS, 8d child and 2d son of Daniel Andrews, sen., of Farmington, married 10th Feb., 1707, Susannah, daughter of Samuel Hough and his wife, Susannah Wrotham, all of Norwich, Conn.; she born 21st Nov., 1683, at Wallingford, but at her marriage said to be of Saybrook; her father's will proved 1718; gave her a portion, and says, besides what she has already received from her grandfather Wrotham. Both Joseph Andrus and his wife, Susannah, to church in old Farmington, 21st Jan., 1711; he had previously, viz. 1st June, 1709, "owned the covenant," and had his son, Joseph, baptized 5th June, 1709. His will was exhibited at probate in Hartford, 1763, but it was dated 13th Oct., 1749; in it he calls his wife Mary; mentions his children, Joseph, Obadiah, Timothy, and Susannah, and made his son, Ebenezer, his sole executor; will proved 1763; he seems to have had a second wife, Mary, and settled a dower to her, when married probably, for the will gives her at his decease all she brought with her, and all she could add to it till his death. To Susannah, his daughter, he gave all his household stuff, and £100, old tenor; to Joseph, and Obadiah, and Timothy, he gave 5s. apiece, old tenor, in addition to what he had given them, and to Ebenezer, one-half his lands and buildings by deed, 13th Oct., 1749, at the same date of his will.

the first 10 years of the 21st century, the number of students in the United States who are Hispanic or Latino has increased by 100 percent (U.S. Census Bureau, 2006).

As the Hispanic population grows, so does the need for research that addresses the needs of this population. The purpose of this article is to provide a review of the literature on the needs of Hispanic students in higher education and to provide recommendations for future research.

The article is organized as follows. First, a brief overview of the Hispanic population in the United States is provided. Second, a review of the literature on the needs of Hispanic students in higher education is presented.

Third, recommendations for future research are provided. Finally, a conclusion is drawn.

Hispanic Population in the United States

The Hispanic population in the United States has grown rapidly in recent years. According to the U.S. Census Bureau (2006), the Hispanic population in the United States was 12.5 million in 2000, up from 8.2 million in 1990. This represents an increase of 50 percent in just 10 years.

The growth of the Hispanic population is expected to continue. The U.S. Census Bureau (2006) projects that the Hispanic population in the United States will reach 20.8 million by 2012, or 15 percent of the total population.

Hispanic students in higher education face a number of challenges. One of the most significant is the language barrier. Many Hispanic students are not fluent in English, which can make it difficult for them to succeed in college.

Another challenge is the financial barrier. Many Hispanic students come from low-income families and may not have the resources to pay for college. This can make it difficult for them to attend college at all.

Finally, Hispanic students may face discrimination in higher education. They may be treated differently by faculty and staff, or they may experience harassment or violence. This can make it difficult for them to feel safe and comfortable in college.

Despite these challenges, many Hispanic students do succeed in higher education. They go on to earn degrees and enter the workforce. However, more research is needed to understand the needs of this population and to develop effective interventions to help them succeed.

Needs of Hispanic Students in Higher Education

There are a number of factors that can affect the success of Hispanic students in higher education. These factors include language, financial resources, and social support. Understanding these factors is essential for developing effective interventions to help Hispanic students succeed.

Language is one of the most significant factors affecting the success of Hispanic students. Many Hispanic students are not fluent in English, which can make it difficult for them to understand lectures, read textbooks, and write papers. This can lead to lower grades and higher rates of dropout.

HEZEKIAH ANDREWS, third son of Daniel, jun., and Mabel Goff, his wife, born 14th Aug., 1781, at Wethersfield, near Farmington line. He married 26th May, 1757, Anna, daughter of Thomas Stedman, and Mary Sage, his wife; she was born on "Stedman Hill," in Wethersfield, 20th June, 1736; they moved to New Britain, soon after marriage, and built the house his grand-son, Ezekiel, now, 1868, occupies, about two miles west of the village, on Main street. He was first on the list of those who "owned the covenant," called the "half-way covenant," 14th May, 1758; he joined the church in full communion, 7th Aug., 1768. He built a saw-mill on the Quinnipiac, at that time the first on that stream of water, on the old records called "Pond river," from the great pond, just east of Plainville, through which pond this stream runs through Southington and Meriden, to New Haven. A fulling-mill had been built previous to this, and located a little below "Dead swamp," and a saw-mill was in existence near the "Great pond," in "White oak," probably earlier than this, built by Hezekiah Andrews. Capt. Lemuel Hotchkiss built a saw-mill between this and the fulling-mill, and had a forge connected with it, where he made iron from ore, and made the iron into wrought nails, from a shingle nail to large spikes. He died 19th April, 1796, in his 65th year. He was a man of very mild and quiet disposition, respected and beloved by all his acquaintances.

Samuel Stanley, Joseph Andrews, and John, son of Abraham Andrews, so that the locality seems to have been near the house of the late Samuel North, deceased, west of Amos Hamblin's place. Eli and Timothy Andrews, 21st June, 1766, signed an agreement to divide the estate of Stephen Andrews, of Farmington, late deceased, each taking half the homestead, three and a half acres each, and the movable property divide equally between them. Timothy Andrews married 18th April, 1764, Abigail Root, (daughter of Joseph, and Hannah Wadsworth, his wife,) born 7th July, 1734; both united with the church in Farmington, 1765. She died 17th Nov., 1807, in her 72d year. He died 15th Nov., 1809, in his 74th year. He lived on a back road, east of Main street, in Farmington village, where now, 1869, Henry Lewis lives, east of A. F. Williams, in the valley; the old Kilbourn place.

In 1753, Timothy Andrews lived in the east part of Farmington, now New Britain, and his farm abutted on the west bounds of Wethersfield, as appears by the following from town record of Farmington, viz.:

She was called Aunt Fanny, by all who knew her. Her husband was born 3d Sept., 1760, and died 16th Dec., 1820; consequently 60 years, three months, three days old. She claimed relationship to Goffe, one of the noted judges of the king of England, and probably rightly, for her grand-mother was Mabel Goff, of Wethersfield, daughter of Jacob, and his wife, Margary Ingersol.

New Britain.

SAMUEL ANDREWS, eldest son of Sergeant Moses, of New Britain, and his wife, Lydia Root, born 2d Nov., 1749, married 17th Dec., 1769, Abigail Smith, daughter of Joseph Smith, jun., and Thankful Hubbard, of Middletown, his wife, born 15th April, 1752; they lived in a brown house, opposite Alfred Andrews' present residence, in 1871, two miles west of New Britain village, on West Main street. He was a soldier of the Revolution, and died in the service, of camp distemper, 20th of September, 1776, only lacking twelve days of 27 years of age. She second, married 9th of Nov., 1780, Ephraim Rice, son of Ephraim, of Meriden. Samuel Andrews was admitted to the first church in New Britain, 17th Nov., 1771. After the death of Mr. Rice, 5th Jan., 1790, she third, married Joseph Richards, of Newington. She died there, 10th Jan., 1838, aged 85, and was buried in Beckley quarter cemetery. She was made guardian to Lydia, and Billy, 25th March, 1778. The estate of Samuel Andrews was £274 11s.

JOSEPH ANDREWS, son of Sergeant Moses, of New Britain, and his wife, Lydia Root, born 23d Dec., 1751; he learned the carpenter's trade of his father, and in turn learned or taught the same to several others; married 6th February, 1777, Lydia Judd, daughter of James, and his wife, Hannah Andrews, born 6th Oct., 1754, at New Britain. He built the house now (1869,) owned and occupied by his grand-son, John Henry Andrews, one mile west of the village. He was a short, thick-set man, with a ruddy face, and vigorous constitution; was in the Revolutionary war; was a large land-holder; run a cider-brandy distillery for too many years for the good of himself or family; his wife, Lydia, died 21st April, 1804, aged 50, of consumption, when second, he married Amy Cowles, daughter of James, of Farmington, and Abigail, his wife; she born 25th Dec., 1758. He died 23d Nov., 1831, aged 80 years. He was a thorough, and successful farmer, and good mechanic; had much executive force and power, but made no pretensions to piety; the compiler was well acquainted with him, many years. When I was a small boy, I heard him say, "there is no truth in half the lies that are told." Great enigma to me, this.

They lived where William Wright now does, in 1868, on the Quinpiac river, two miles west of New Britain village. While this house was being built, they lived one year in the Demas Warner house, a few rods north-west of the new one, on the hill, still called "Demas Hill." His obituary notice says he was one of nine sons, seven of whom were in the war of the Revolution. He removed about 1800, to Montague, Mass., on Connecticut river, where he died, 20th July, 1848, aged 93. His wife, Elizabeth, was "too smart," for on one occasion, while living in New Britain, and just before he removed to Montague, while an officer was arresting her husband, she beat him off and bruised him, for which she was suspended from Dr. Smalley's church, but on subsequent repentance, was restored in 1807, to her former standing. She died at Montague, Mass., 8th Dec., 1840, aged 82.

Doctor JESSE ANDREWS, son of Sergeant Moses, of New Britain, and his wife, Lydia Root, born 19th Dec., 1760, baptized 11th Jan., 1761; he was a young man of great promise; he formed an early attachment to Anna, daughter of Dr. Smalley, but the prejudice and sternness of her father forbid the connection, recalled and burned the letters passed, and he, in the words of a cotemporary, pined away and died, in early manhood, 4th April, 1790, in the thirtieth year of his age. His brother, Doctor Isaac, was administrator on his estate, in 1790; the property being distributed to the brothers, then living, and to heirs of Samuel, deceased; he had no sisters. Inventory, £259. He lived in the same house with his father, (still, in 1871, standing, and occupied;) when about 1806, and after the decease of his parents, who were very aged, he removed with his family, to Whitestown, New York. He died 27th August, 1845, aged 83: his widow, Jerusha, died 9th Dec., 1857, aged 86; both at Flint, Michigan. It is said that he was remarkably diffident in early manhood, so much so as to shrink from the company of females, and his male associates had to help, and encourage him to court and secure his wives.

Rev. NOAH ANDREWS, eldest son of Thomas, of Farmington, and his first wife, Abigail North, born 29th Jan., 1746-7; graduated at Yale College, in 1777. He had a double portion of his father's estate, which was distributed in 1763, he being the eldest son. One family record says he was a candidate for the ministry, when he died, 30th May, 1780. The probate record of Farmington represents him as dying in Hatfield, Mass., and makes the inventory of his estate £156 4s. 1d., or rather it says, late of Hatfield, Mass., formerly of Farmington, Conn., and the settlement of the estate is dated 1780; no mention is made of wife or child, and the probability is he had none. His grave is at the old cemetery, at Farmington, and a marble slab shows it, towards the north-west corner; the probability is, he was supplying the pulpit in Hatfield, or preaching as a candidate, when he was taken sick and died. In 1763, he received a portion of his uncle, Paul Andrews' estate. Daniel Gridley, of Farmington, was administrator of his estate, and on his inventory was a shop and tools, at Hatfield; amount of inventory at Hatfield, £39 19s. 8d.; at Farmington, £116 0s. 4d.

He united with the Congregational church there, in June, 1821, at the time of the great revival. He married 25th Oct., 1797, at Berlin, Hannah Burnett, of that town, (before Dr. Upson,) who died 17th of May, 1810, aged 31 years, three months, and eight days, consequently born 9th Feb., 1779, when second, he married 23d Dec., 1810, Nancy Bidwell, of Farmington; she to church there, in 1796. His residence was next south of his shop, and has been occupied by his son-in-law, Deacon Simeon Hart, many years, and now (in 1868,) owned by E. E. Warren. Mr. Andrews was an intelligent man, active in business, and well to do in the world; was a man of good appearance and address. An advertisement in the Connecticut Courant, dated 17th Nov., 1797, shows that he was executor on the estate of Mary Root, late of Farmington, deceased. His estate was settled in 1832; amount of inventory, $20,037.60. Elijah Porter, and Richard Cowles, appraisers. The heirs at law made a division by agreement, signed 7th Nov., 1832, by Simeon Hart, jun., and Abigail, his wife, and Timothy Andrews, then an only living son of the deceased. The father died intestate; hence the above agreement and division.

HIS CHILD BY HANNAH, HIS FIRST WIFE.

Canaan, Conn.

JEREMIAH ANDREWS, eldest child and son of Deacon Joshua, of Newington, and his wife, Sybil Stoddard, born 16th January, 1732. He was admitted a freeman in Canaan, Conn., in 1777. He bought land in Canaan, in 1775, on the 14th of July, of David Wright, fourteen acres, and at that date both of them were residents of the town, and on the 28th of October, 1757, Josiah Hurlbut, of Canaan, for £45, sold Jeremiah Andrews, of said Canaan, thirty acres on the meeting-house road. He married Sarah Bryant, who outlived him. His will bears date at Canaan, 21st of June, 1782. Amount of inventory, £421 0s. 5d.; the debts and expense of the settlement, £49 6s. 8d. 2f. The will was exhibited in probate district of Sharon, 2d March, 1785, by Benajah, his eldest son, and executor, with the widow. The will provided for the widow, Sarah; gave to Benajah, to Theodore, to Sarah, to Abiah, to Esther. The distributors were Nathan Hale, and John Hollenbeck; it was dated June, 1785. The will names his eldest daughter, Sybil, but in the distribution her name does not appear; perhaps then deceased. The Canaan school society record says, Jeremiah Andrews was made school committee for the North-west district, 3d Dec., 1767; this locates him on the plain, where the first church stood, about one mile north of Falls Village, and in 1774, Hezekiah Andrews, and Jeremiah Andrews, were of the committee of Rev. Daniel Farland's society. He says in his will, "I give my eldest son, Benajah, the place that has been called his own." His wife, Sarah Bryant, was blind forty years. He died in June, 1752, at Canaan, Conn., in his fiftieth year.

He was a lieutenant in the third company of the eighth regiment of militia of Connecticut, in the war of the Revolution. His estate was distributed 4th March, 1779, to his brothers, Jeremiah, of Canaan, and to Fitch, of Newington, only surviving brothers, which shows that he had no family of his own. He enlisted 15th March, 1762, into the company of Capt. John Patterson, and went out to Havana in that unfortunate enterprise, in which over one-third of his large company, from Wethersfield and Farmington died of yellow fever, while he, Andrews, survived, and did good service in the later war of the Revolution.

I here transcribe the substance of two letters he wrote to his friend and neighbor, Josiah Willard, of Newington, which have been preserved by the late Daniel Willard, dated at Roxbury, Mass. He died 20th of Feb., 1776, in his 41st year; so family record.

September 28th, 1775.

Josiah Willard,—Dear Sir: Permit me to assure you of my regards, and inform you by these lines that through the goodness of a "Divine Being" I am in health at present, as I hope these lines will find you, and your father's family. I have nothing to write concerning the army, but what you have in the weekly papers, I suppose, and yet I would say the sickness has abated, and it is a healthy time here. Yesterday we lost one Lewis, of Farmington, by sickness; the rest of our company are well, except Jedediah Mills, who is in the hospital, with fever and sore throat. More troops are coming in from New London, and the rest are on their march, near by. We have made a fort down by the Neck, and another breast-work, we have got across the marsh, on the right, about fifty rods from St. George tavern, in towards the custom house, and though we have received a great number of cannon and shells from the enemy, we have had but two men killed, which is considered the hand of Divine Providence. Last Saturday they gave us 108 balls and shells, but we had no harm. Night before last 200 of our men went fishing on Governor's Island, and brought off thirteen cattle, without opposition. On the 26th instant, seven transports came in with soldiers, "regulars;" we don't know the number. Some of our chief officers think we shall soon have a smart engagement, and our men are in high spirits. If we should have a general attack, God only knows whose lot it will be to fall. Just heard in camp that a large ship from Quebec, with a large stock of cattle, and other provisions, for Boston, but by hard wind drove ashore, at Cape Ann, and fell into our hands, but wants confirmation.

Signed, Epaphras Andrews.

Roxbury, Mass., in camp, October 8th, 1775.

Josiah Willard, Newington, in Wethersfield, Conn.

My much respected friend,—I am in health, by the blessing of God, and hope these lines will find you and all your father's family well. Yours to me dated 27th Sept., 1775, is received, and I return my sincere thanks; it rejoiced my heart greatly. It is a very great relief to one confined in camp, to hear from home. I have nothing especial to write; would say, however, our works here are very extensive, and we are full of business, yet our men are in good spirits. We have made a breast-work and fort, just as we go on to "Boston Neck." We have four cannon placed here to play on the enemy. And we have raised another redoubt, about forty rods beyond St. George's tavern, towards Boston; we keep a guard here night and day, and nights the regulars keep their guard at Brown's, and the sentry here frequently fire on each other, but to little effect. These redoubts we were obliged to make in plain sight of their lines, which they have got across the Neck, well mounted with cannon, and within grape-shot of us, and though they fire repeatedly on our guards, at these lines, where we have about 600 men constantly, yet we are wonderfully preserved. Last Friday we fired two of our guns (cannon) on the enemy, and they returned ninety shots on us, but only one of our men lost an arm, and two cows killed. I can give you no idea of things here; though you are acquainted with the place, you would scarcely know it now. Last night a regular came to us from Boston; he says we killed a corporal of their guard, Friday morning; he says Gage is going home soon. Last night a strong cannonading was heard in Rhode Island. The famous tory, Doctor Church, you will hear of. Our company are well, and I remain as ever, yours,

Signed, Epaphras Andrews.

ASA ANDREWS, eldest son of Elijah, of Wethersfield, and his wife, Phebe Hurlburt, born 10th April, 1746. He married 16th March, 1768, Chloe, daughter of William Andrews, and his first wife, Irene Griswold; she born 3d March, 1747-8; she was admitted to "half-way covenant" in Newington church, 4th Feb., 1770. A. D. 1780, he was a sergeant in the Continental army, Colonel Wyllys' regiment; and 4th of August received back pay, £33 17s. 7d., and for good service a gratuity of £1. He was a militia-man also at the beginning of the war, as will appear by the following letters written to his friend, Josiah Willard, in Newington, and preserved by the Willard family, to this date, 1868, and lent me to transcribe for this work, or the substance of them.

Camp, Roxbury, Mass., 8th August, 1775.

Mr. Josiah Willard,—Dear Sir: I take this opportunity to write a few lines to say I am in good health, and hope this will find you and all your father's family also in health. Some die here of camp distemper, but few considering so large an army. Mr. Israel Boardman's son, Elijah, is like to die. His wife is not expected. Asa Blin is sick, and Elijah Boardman, 2d, all of camp disease. No more at present. Please write me.

Signed, Asa Andrews.

Roxbury, Mass., camp, 8th August, 1775.

To Josiah Willard, Newington—Loving friend: I take this opportunity to write that I am now well, but have been sick; am now able to do duty; hope this will find you, your father's family, and all my Newington friends, well. I have no remarkable news to write at present, only that our men went to the Light-house Island, and took twenty-six regulars, and nine Tories, and a vast number of rich and valuable things, such as silks, and silver ware, &c.; a great number of valuable articles; and they destroyed two schooners, by burning, and all in the light-house, and lost but one man. There are two new ships come in, loaded with men; we suppose them to be regulars. I have nothing more to write, at present, but subscribe myself your loving friend,

Asa Andrews.

P. S. Sir, in your letter there is one directed to my wife; should be glad to have you hand it to her, and thus oblige me very much.

dated 25th Dec., 1799 ; also seven acres, the lot he now lives on, one-half the new barn, and one-half the tan-house, and one half of the currying-shop. It seems he sold out and removed to Stratford, Conn., where he died 30th May, 1853, aged 83 years, three months, twenty-two days. His widow died 24th Oct., 1868, aged 95 years, eight months, twenty three days. He was a shoe-maker and tanner by trade.

There is a sad story of the misfortunes of Elizur Andrews. He bought at Stratford, near the mouth of the Housatonic river, a hotel, or large house used for the resort of pleasure seekers, which stood on the bank of a creek ; a great body of snow had fallen in December, and a thaw followed, and a flood rose so that the family took to the second story, and then to the garret ; mean while the water undermined the building, and it fell, with the inmates floating on the garret floor ; boats were useless, the wind and flood raged so furious ; the raft and family landed on the shore, one mile and a half from any house, and they all waded through the snow. He lost all ; his health and spirits failed, and he was depressed through life.

THE POLYMERIZATION OF VINYL MONOMERS

The polymerization of vinyl monomers is a process in which the monomers react to form a polymer. This reaction is typically initiated by a free radical, which then propagates the reaction by adding to the monomers. The resulting polymer is a long chain of repeating units. The polymerization of vinyl monomers is a fundamental process in polymer science and has many applications in industry and research.

He is by occupation a farmer, and has his farm and residence in the east part of Bethel, where I met him in a corn-field June, 1867, from which field (being greatly elevated) the whole valley of Bethel and Danbury can be seen as a charming landscape, the mother and daughter nestling snugly at a calling distance, while their tall spires and factory cupolas glisten in the setting sun, forming a striking contrast with what might have been seen nearly a hundred years before, when the smoke of the buildings and provisions of our revolutionary army were seen rising together, to the grief of the early settlers of this lovely valley, and the loss of all things but the land on which they stood.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the properties of the function $f(x)$ defined by the equation $f(x) = \int_0^x f(t) dt$. It is shown that $f(x)$ is a constant function, and its value is determined by the initial condition $f(0) = 1$.

2. In the second part, we consider the problem of finding the maximum value of the function $f(x)$ on the interval $[0, 1]$. It is shown that the maximum value is attained at $x = 0$ and is equal to 1.

3. Finally, we discuss the question of the uniqueness of the solution to the initial value problem.

4. It is shown that the solution is unique, and its value is determined by the initial condition $f(0) = 1$.

Noah Porter. She married 9th December, 1824, Simeon Hart, Jr., a teacher of Farmington Academy. He united with the church there in 1825, and she in 1818. He was made deacon, in 1827, of the Congregational Church at Farmington, was a representative of that town several years to the state legislature, was the originator of the savings bank in that town, and the first secretary. They had one child only, to live, Adaline Fanny Hart, who married Professor Rufus Cowles Crampton, now, 1871, of Jacksonville, Ill., and they have one child only, Edward Hart Crampton, who is the last relic of Mr. Asa Andrews, the land surveyor and tinman of Farmington, Conn. They inherited the home and property of her father, and they lived and she died in the same house, on Main Street, south of the church in Farmington. The house is now (1869) owned by E. E. Warren. She died 23d August, 1838, aged 39 years, 9 months, 7 days, when second he married 6th November, 1839, 603. Canaan, Conn., Stockbridge, Mass.

BENAJAH ANDREWS, eldest son of Jeremiah, of Newington and Canaan, Conn., and his wife, Sarah Bryant, born about 1760, married about 1795, Charlotte E. Burghardt.* He was made free in Canaan 12th April, 1784. He was a weaver by trade and occupation, and lived in Stockbridge. He was administrator on his father's estate before the Probate Court, at Sharon, Conn., 1782. In 1795 he is called of West Stockbridge, and 22d June of that year bought lands of his brothers, Joshua, of Luninburgh, and Elijah of West Stockbridge, that formerly belonged to Jeremiah Andrews, deceased, of Canaan, the land lying there, with buildings thereon, about twenty acres, now (that is, 1795,) occupied by the widow, Sarah. Benajah Andrews, after the death of his wife, became deranged, and walked from West Stockbridge to the old home of the family, on Canaan Plain, and threw himself into the well, on the 21st day of September, 1805, aged 45 years. It appears from Probate record at Lenox, Mass., that 5th June, 1810, Noah Rositor, of Richmond, Mass., was made guardian to Benajah B. Andrews, son of Benajah Andrews, late of West Stockbridge, deceased, showing that he probably died before 1810, he (Benajah B.) being then a minor over fourteen years of age. But it further appears from Probate Court record, at Sharon, Conn., that administration on the estate of Benajah was granted to his brother, Elijah, 9th October, 1805. The inventory was $233.32, and was made 13th March, 1806, by Elizur Wright and Samuel Robbins. The debts and expenses were £20 8s. 3d., and the balance was distributed to the heirs, Burget and Betsey. No mention is made of a widow, which conclusively shows that she died previously. His father gave him by will a place in Canaan, then (1782) called his own. The date of his death is on the church record in South Canaan.

ESTATE OF ELIJAH ANDREWS, OF WEST STOCKBRIDGE, DECEASED.

The Probate Court record at Lenox, Mass., has, in substance, the following, viz: "Mary Ann Andrews, the widow, appears in Court, and save that Elijah died 1st day of March, 1832, leaving children, viz: Sophronia, of mature age, Lydia and Andrew, minors under 14 years, all of West Stockbridge; Cordelia and Sarah, minors over 14 years, of West Stockbridge; Harriot, of Great Barrington, a minor over 14; Ambrose, Mary, and Charlotte, all of mature age, of New York State; Anna, of State of Connecticut, of Lawful age; and Abigail, of Stockbridge, of age; and the petitioner says she is the Widow of said Elijah, and prays that Administration may be granted to her and Milton Ball, of Stockbridge, and they are appointed, and Eli Pipe and Rob. Perry, of Stockbridge, are made appraisers. Estate, $1,518.78; order of Sale both of personal and Real to pay Debts and expense; sold for $1,639.16; Debts and charges, $1,243.62; bal. to Distribute to heirs, $395.60."

The above does not agree with the record in his family Bible. It speaks of Anna in Connecticut, and makes his death twenty days earlier than the Bible. This court record is probably right.

She was admitted to the church in New Britain 6th August, 1815, by letter from the Farmington Church.

* This is the F. T. Stanley whose influence and enterprise in 1830 first introduced steam power into use in New Britain, by which to drive machinery, and who was the projector of the Water Works in 1857, a distinguishing feature of beauty and utility to the village, and now (1872) is mayor of the city.

Portrait of Ethan A. Andrews 1841

He built on Stanley Street, near his father's home, in 1813. He taught a select school in a part of his house, with good success, for several years. He removed his family in 1829, and his church connection in 1832, to New Haven, Conn., where he had a select school of young ladies, and a like school at Boston subsequently. He was a professor of languages in the University of North Carolina for a time. After his return to his home he represented the town in the state legislature for the year 1851. He was a magistrate and judge of probate court, but he gained his eminence and celebrity from his literary taste and labor as a Latin author. In 1848 his Alma Mater (Yale College) gave him the honorable degree of LL. D. He died, in the midst of his literary labors, 24th March, 1858, aged 70 years, 11 months, 17 days. He was gentlemanly in his deportment, had a peculiar suavity of manner, and was eminently a literary light of his age and country. On the 19th of May, 1858, at the request of several prominent citizens of the place, Rev. Hubbard Winslow, of Boston, delivered an eulogy on the life and services of this distinguished man, at the Centre Church in New Britain, to a very large audience, a copy of which was requested, and published at Boston soon after. An inventory of his estate, amounting to $23,814.48, was made by Henry Francis and Henry M. Pratt, and presented to Probate Court, district of Berlin, 15th June, 1858. He built a Gothic house in 1855, on the site of his father's old red one displaced.

REV. JOSIAH BISHOP ANDREWS, M. D., only son of Josiah, of Southington, Conn., and his first wife, Rebecca Bishop, of New Haven, Conn.; born 17th March, 1775, at Southington; graduated A. M. at Yale College, September, 1797; married 17th August, 1801, at Wintonbury, now Bloomfield, Conn., Mary Bissell, of Windsor; born there 9th February, 1775. She died 24th December, 1848, at New York. He became a licentiate for the gospel ministry 5th June, 1799, and was ordained pastor of a church in Killingworth, Conn., 12th April, 1802. In 1811 he removed from there to New York City, and opened a large school at No. 11 Sugar-Loaf Street, now called Franklin Street, and the same year established a Sunday School in that part of the city, said to be the first organized there. The following year, his school being largely increased, he removed to No. 20 on the same street, and called it the Scientific Institution, where he fitted a class every year for college. He also supplied a church at Hempstead, Long Island, and preached occasionally in New York. He also studied medicine, and graduated M. D. at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, 11th March, 1816, but removed to Perth Amboy, N. J., where he was installed pastor of the Presbyterian Church in 1816, and where he also practiced medicine and surgery for some thirteen years, during which time he acted as health officer of that port of entry. He was president of the Medical Society of Middlesex County, being an able and successful medical practitioner. In 1829, after the death of his father, at Southington, Conn., he removed there and settled his estate, and resided on the homestead farm some ten years, and was made a representative of that town to the state legislature in 1836. He again removed to New York City, and bought the house No. 11 Walker Street, where he practiced medicine, and occasionally preached as a supply. Here he resided until his death, 26th April, 1853, aged 78 years, 1 month, 9 days. He was a linguist and a scholar. His great aim was the acquirement and diffusion of knowledge, a man of great energy and perseverance. He had a large circle of friends who appreciated his worth, but also had, from envy, some bitter enemies among the clergy. He was a fine and noble looking man, and the only one of our kin who had traced his genealogy back to the settler. I have before me a letter from Rev. Abner Morse, of Boston, lately deceased, (which was probably one of his last,) which was unsolicited, and fully corroborates the unjust action of the clergy in Elizabethtown, N. J. A sense of duty compels me, as an historian, to use it here.

"If, in preparing your work, you come across your namesake, Doctor Andrews, of Perth Amboy, N. J., 1823-6, (not probably now alive,) I ask you to do his memory justice. He was sacrificed, as a minister, unjustly, and some knowledge of the wrong done him set me for ever against Presbyterianism, and every form of standing courts in the churches. Judge Kirkpatrick, of the Superior Court of New Jersey, told me that he disliked Andrews, attended his trial, heard all the evidence against him, and was for his acquittal, for there was no proof against him. I never was much acquainted with Doctor Andrews—know not what became of him—but I do know that an ambitious and intriguing man had a personal difficulty with him, and determined to crush him, and resorted to any and every means that an unprincipled politician does to crush his rival, and in about four years of the most active intrigue accomplished it, corrupting young ministers and using them in his persecution. Had the transaction occurred in New England the persecutor would have lost his character, and Doctor Andrews been honorably sustained in the presbytery, synod, and general assembly, who condemned him. The history of the presbytery of Elizabethtown ought to record their guilt, give the names of the ministers, and show how each voted.

(Signed,)

Yours ever, ABNER MORSE.

Boston, Mass., June 9th, 1864."

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995 (Department of Health 1996).

There is a growing emphasis on the importance of the public sector in the provision of health care, and the need to ensure that it is able to meet the needs of the population. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the establishment of the National Health Service (NHS) in 1948, and the creation of the Department of Health in 1991. The NHS is a public sector body that provides health care to all people in the UK, and the Department of Health is responsible for the overall management of the NHS.

The NHS is a large and complex organization, and it is important to ensure that it is able to meet the needs of the population. This requires a number of things, including a strong and effective management system, and a commitment to high standards of care. The Department of Health is responsible for ensuring that the NHS is able to meet these requirements.

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

2. Next, it is important to gather relevant information and data. This can be done through research, consultation with experts, or by analyzing existing data sets.

3. Once the information is gathered, the next step is to analyze it and identify the key factors that influence the outcome. This often involves using statistical methods or other analytical tools.

4. After analysis, the next step is to develop a plan or strategy to address the problem. This plan should be based on the findings of the analysis and should take into account the constraints and resources available.

5. Finally, the plan is implemented, and the results are monitored and evaluated. This step is crucial for ensuring that the solution is effective and for identifying any areas for improvement.

1026. Scattle, Washington Territory.

WILLIAM ANDREWS, eldest son of George, of Glastonbury, Conn., Rutland County, Vt., and Henrietta, N. Y., and his wife, Rebecca Stevens, of Glastonbury, born 17th April, 1804, at Glastonbury. He went with his parents as above. He married 17th January, 1828, Hannah, youngest daughter of Henry Pierson, of Victor, N. Y., and his wife, Hannah Browne, born 4th July, 1808, at Victor. Mr. Andrews was a brick mason by trade, and lived in Michigan, Minnesota, and California, and in 1871 in the city of Scattle, Washington Territory, and owned several large lots with buildings thereon. He was a public lecturer, a medical clairvoyant, and a spiritualist. They have had but one child, and he is an only son, who has followed them in all their pioneer life and wanderings, from whom I have just received a long and kind communication, from the place where the sun goes down. Since the above writing I have received two papers, published in the city of Scattle, announcing the death of Mr. William Andrews, on the 8th day of August, 1871, at his residence in that city, aged 67 years, 8 months, 21 days, and that the United States District Court, then sitting, adjourned until after the funeral, out of respect to him and his family, his only son, L. B. Andrews, Esq., being clerk of the same. These papers also spoke in high terms of the character and standing of the deceased in the community, of the flags being displayed at half mast, of the large procession, and the solemnity of the occasion. The services at the house and the grave were conducted by Mrs. A. D. Wiggins, and a very interesting discourse was delivered by the Rev. Daniel Bagley, at the Brown Church. Mr. Andrews was a Methodist some twenty-five years, and twenty years of that time was a class leader. He said that when he was a boy he walked over the ground where Rochester, N. Y., stands, and then there was but one log house there.

ALFRED HINSDALE ANDREWS, third son of Alfred, No. 482, of New Britain, Conn., and his second wife, Mary L. Shipman, of the same town, born 25th December, 1836, at New Britain; baptized there 1st June, 1837. He received a common school education, and worked on his father's farm until he was about sixteen years old, when he worked in Meriden, Conn., at mechanical business, and attended one term at the Connecticut Literary Institution in Suffield. He went west as far as Chicago, Iowa, and Wisconsin, seeking a living, sometimes called seeking a fortune. After some time of wandering, and passing through various changes and vicissitudes, he brought up at the Holbrook Apparatus Company, engaged in making and selling school furniture in Chicago, where he spent some eight years in their employ as a clerk and book-keeper, but not receiving a proper compensation for his services, he set up for himself, and by dint of hard labor and favoring circumstances he has established an extensive business, both in the manufacture and sale of school and office furniture in Chicago, Ill., St. Louis, Mo., and Leavenworth, Kan., with a branch at Michawakee, Ind. It is seldom that a young man, with no capital but head and hands, is so successful, and shows that he has an extra tact and talent for business operations. This company produces, by the skill of good workmen combined with perfect machinery, highly finished work at a very low figure—the bare patterns for the latest style of school desk costing over $3,000. They employ over 100 men, and their business has increased four-fold in as many years, and now (1872) their school desks are sold in every state in the Union, thus making themselves public benefactors. They lost by the great fire, 9th October, 1871, $47,000 over their insurance, but their factory, lumber, and tools, were saved, so that they were able to fill all orders. He was married Tuesday, 6th February, 1872, to Ella Cornelia, daughter of Newell Matson, of Simsbury, Conn., and his wife, Flora M. Case, of the same town, born 13th May, 1851, at Owego, N. Y. the same building. When about nineteen years of age he went as helper to his brother, Alfred H., at Chicago. After spending about one year there he went to Leavenworth, Kan., where he built up a business, which he sold to his brother-in-law, Sidney Smith, who pursues the same as one branch of his operations. After spending some few months with the establishment at St. Louis he returned to his brother, at Chicago, and entered, with much enthusiasm, into the manufacturing department of that company. He has a natural taste for drawing and perspective, and a high admiration for the beauties of nature. He has an inventive genius, so that he has obtained several valuable patents on school furniture and appliances. The two latest styles of school desks are brought to such perfection, and promote the comfort of the scholar to such a degree, that some of the best educators of the country acknowledge a saving of one-third of their trouble in keeping order, which is the best possible recommendation of their goods.

1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what consumers want and need. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a product that meets that need.

2. The second step in the process is to develop a business plan. This involves determining the costs of production, the pricing strategy, and the marketing strategy. The business plan also includes a financial forecast, which shows the expected revenue and profits over a period of time. Once the business plan is complete, the next step is to secure financing for the project.

3.3

3. The third step in the process is to create a prototype of the product. This involves building a small-scale version of the product that can be used to test the design and make any necessary adjustments. Once the prototype is complete, the next step is to conduct a pilot production run to test the manufacturing process.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system of equations (1) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) converge to the solutions of the system of equations (2) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$. The convergence is uniform on compact subsets of the domain Ω .

2. In the second part of the paper, the asymptotic expansion of the solutions of the system (1) is constructed. It is shown that the asymptotic expansion of the solutions of the system (1) has the form where u_0, u_1, u_2, \dots are functions defined on the domain Ω . The functions u_0, u_1, u_2, \dots are determined by the system of equations (2) and the boundary conditions (3).

$$u = u_0 + \epsilon u_1 + \epsilon^2 u_2 + \dots$$

3. In the third part of the paper, the asymptotic expansion of the solutions of the system (1) is used to study the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the system (1) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$. It is shown that the solutions of the system (1) converge to the solutions of the system of equations (2) as $\epsilon \rightarrow 0$. The convergence is uniform on compact subsets of the domain Ω .

man, on the coast of Africa, for two and one-half years. Since that time he has cruised on the North Atlantic station, the coast of Brazil, and in the North and South Pacific Squadrons. At the commencement of the war, then a lieutenant, he was ordered to the United States Steamer Wachusett, as ex-officer, and arrived at Fortress Monroe a few days after the memorable fight between the Monitor and rebel iron-clad Merrimac. After serving about six months aboard the Wachusett, on James River, he was placed in command of the United States Steamer Morse, and after remaining on James River a short time, was ordered to command the York River Flotilla, under Admiral Lee, who then commanded the North Atlantic Squadron. The service upon these rivers was arduous in the extreme, and Lieutenant Babcock was in numerous fights with the rebels. The engagement at White House, on the Pamunkey River, was under his immediate command, and he was opposed by the rebel general, Wade Hampton, and Fitzhugh Lee's cavalry of 8,000 men and their batteries, whom he succeeded in driving entirely from their position, thereby saving for our army 1,500 men, and a large number of horses and wagons. In the winter of 1864 Lieutenant Babcock joined the Mississippi Squadron as acting fleet captain, with Admiral Lee, and when that squadron was broken up after the war, he was sent to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, in charge of all the ordnance of that squadron, and there he erected buildings for its preservation. He was then relieved, and ordered to the navy-yard at Portsmouth, N. H., where he remained two years, and was thence ordered to the South Pacific Squadron, to command the United States Steamer Nyack. In November last he returned home, having seen nearly fourteen years of active service at sea. Having passed successfully through all the grades from midshipman up, he has been promoted to a commander on the active list in the navy of the United States, and is awaiting orders. No one will say Lieutenant Babcock has not earned his present promotion.—Grand Rapids Eagle, February 5th.

"The young naval commander above spoken of is a lad of Penn Yan birth. His father, Colonel Charles P. Babcock, formerly postmaster of this village, left Penn Yan in 1844. His son is evidently doing credit to his parentage. Colonel Charles P. Babcock married, in this town, Maria Andrews, sister of Dr. Jeremiah B. Andrews, and Charles A. Babcock is their only child. He has numerous relatives in Yates County, who will be glad to hear of his success and advancement in life."

DOCTOR WILLIAM WALLACE ANDREWS, second son of Epaphras, of Newington, Conn., and Wethersfield, N. Y., and his wife, Abigail Wells, of Newington, born 5th July, 1818, at Newington, Conn. In early childhood he removed with his parents to Wethersfield, N. Y., where they died when he was beginning his teens. He educated himself thoroughly, especially in medicine, and began practice in Attica, N. Y., when he was at the age of twenty-six. On the 8th of February, in the year 1846, he married Ellen Sophie, daughter of George Foster, and his wife, Caroline A. Owen, and removed to the town of Alexander, N. Y., where he had the confidence of the community as a physician and a gentleman. In 1852, the time of the gold fever, he went with others to California, where he staid two years, and then took passage for home in the ill-fated Steamer Winfield Scott, which became a total wreck when twenty-four hours out. The passengers were thrown on to a small desolate island, where, after much suffering, he and a few others were taken to Acapulco, and visited Mexico and other places of interest on their route home, where he arrived in April, 1854, and resumed his professional labors. He received his medical diploma in 1859, at the Eclectic Medical College, New York. Finding his health being impaired he removed, in 1864, to Jackson, Mich., and engaged for a time in the insurance business, but found it impossible to relinquish his former practice. In religion he was liberal, in politics a supporter of the government, and always anti-slavery. He was patriotic, of sanguine temperament, 5 feet, 8 inches, in height, black hair, dark hazel eyes, weight 160 pounds. He died 8d February, 1870, at his home in Jackson, Mich., of brain fever. A lengthy obituary notice is given of him in the Jackson Daily Citizen, in which he is spoken of in high terms as a scholar and a gentleman. His age was 51 years, 6 months, 28 days. He left an affectionate wife to mourn his loss, but no children. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, and was also a Free Mason, and both showed the courtesies of their order at his funeral. He sent an excellent letter from his home in Alexander, N. Y., to the Andrews Gathering, in 1860, at Wallingford, Conn., which was read to the applauding audience, in which he expressed his interest in the object of the convention, and his regrets that circumstances prevented his attendance.

He continued some three years as a journeyman, when he went west seeking his fortune.

He brought up at Macedon, Wayne County, N. He continued his business here twelve and one-half years, and in the meanwhile married 15th September, 1836, Leah, daughter of Herbert Mallory, a leading Hicksite Quaker, by whom he had five children. His residence in 1869 was at Moscow, Hillsdale County, Mich., where he was engaged in agriculture. He says the office of lieutenant in military, and justice in civil life, satisfied his ambition. He has furnished me much of the history of his father's family, and is greatly interested in this Genealogy.

He is an attorney at law, and resides at Saratoga, N. Y. He married , Rosanna Brown, of New York City, born 12th August, 1816. He is a man of wealth and standing at Saratoga, but has been exceedingly unfortunate in the loss of so many of his children. I once thought his manners very forbidding. I sent a note to his son, in college at Utica, who had been an officer in the late war, asking information about his pedigree. The father replied for the son, and among other facetious remarks, said he had spent no time on useless genealogies, and hence knew little about his father's family, and closed his long and beautifully written letter by quoting an anecdote, or story, of Andrew Jackson, about a man down in Tennessee who made a good living by minding his own business. This, in the connection and circumstances, I thought was cool, very, yet my ardor and passion for pedigree hunting was not dampened, but on the contrary stimulated, and it was received as an overflow of superabundant animal spirits of a well fed and witty lawyer, and subsequent kind and gentlemanly responses prove it so. This digression is made just here to show how very different some men regard the subject of genealogy from others, and how the same men, once indifferent,

She united to the Congregational Church in Southington, 6th August, 1826. His residence and farm is pleasantly located in the east part of Southington, and was the home of his father, but it has been fitted up and renovated with a good house and barns, with vines and fruit trees, being productive land, located on the ridge producing the cement stone, which was formerly extensively burnt there for cement. Mr. Andrews has an active mind, and very industrious habits. He has been elected to various offices in the gift of the town, and a representative to the General Assembly of Connecticut. About 1858 he became deeply interested in gathering the proper materials for a history of the town of Southington, extending through the pedigree of the Andrews, Cowles, Hart, Woodruff, Newell, and various other families, so that the amount of material on his notes and manuscripts is immense, and should be made public in printed form. I am more indebted to him than any other living man for aid, encouragement, and assistance, not only in the compilation of this work, but also of my History of New Britain, and later still in the preparation of a memorial of the Hart family. His researches have made him familiar with church, town, and probate records. His easy circumstances in life favor the publication of a history of the town of Southington, and he has been urged to do so, but I fear declining health will prevent.

The third step is to create a prototype of the product. This can be done using various materials and techniques, depending on the nature of the product. Gambier, Ashland, Ohio.

COLONEL LORIN ANDREWS, eldest son of Alanson, of South Brimfield, (now Wales,) and Ashland, Ohio, and his second wife, Mrs. Sally Needham, born 1st April, 1819, at Ashland, Ohio. When seventeen or eighteen years of age, being a young man of good morals and beloved by all, he obtained a situation as assistant teacher in the Ashland Academy, where he made rapid strides in literature, and in due time became its principal. The institution was very popular under his government. Massilon, in Stark County, hearing of his fame, offered him an increased salary to take charge of their newly established high school. He accepted, and conducted it with great success for eight or ten years, when he was offered a position in Kenyon College, and soon after became president of that popular and far famed institution. When the late rebellion broke out, and war was inevitable, and the call for volunteers having been made, the president of Kenyon College asked of the Faculty leave of absence for one year, with a view of aiding his country in repelling the invading foe. His request was granted. He raised a company in Knox County, Ohio, was elected their captain, and marched them to the battle-field in Virginia. He married 30th October, 1843, Sarah Rebecca Gates, of Worcester, Mass., daughter of Simon, of that town, and his wife, Sarah Hastings, born 5th September, 1823, at Worcester, Mass., and was first cousin to her husband. After the death of her husband she was appointed, by President Lincoln, postmistress at Gambier, Ohio, the locality of the college and the residence of the family. He studied law, and in 1847 was admitted to the bar, but never went into practice. Lorin Andrews LL. D, president of Kenyon College, and colonel of the 4th Regiment Ohio Volunteer Militia, was no ordinary man. His decision, energy, and disinterestedness, with his piety, qualified him for any position. If he raised Kenyon College, from a low and dying condition, to life, prosperity and popularity, he did a far more herculean task previously in raising the standard of popular education in the great state of Ohio. I have it, over the signatures of the principal surviving educators of Ohio, that the people of that state are more deeply indebted to him than to any other of her sons, either living or dead. This narrative might be prolonged so as to make a volume as large as this Memorial, and then the subject would not be exhausted. In the fall of 1853 he was called to the presidency of Kenyon College, a position of great responsibility at that time, the finances were so low and the students so few; but from the first day of his administration it took new life. When the late war broke out he was the first in his native state to volunteer as a private soldier. He went out as captain, but was soon promoted to colonel. He served his country faithfully and was beloved by his regiment, but being taken with the common camp fever, he was carried home to Gambier, Ohio, on a bed, and there, among his family friends, peacefully died, on the 18th of September, 1861, aged 42 years, 5 months, 17 days. The mourning at Gambier, Massilon, and Columbus, was like that at Hadad Rimmon of old. A funeral sermon was preached by the rector of the church of which the deceased was early a member, from the text—"Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" Public meetings of sympathy and condolence were held in the neighboring towns and villages. The college Faculty and various literary societies passed resolutions expressive of the very high estimation they had of his talents and character as a public benefactor and Christian philanthropist.

It is a branch of linguistics which deals with the changes in the English language over time. The study of the history of the English language is important for several reasons. First, it helps us to understand the development of the English language and the factors which have influenced its development. Second, it helps us to understand the relationship between the English language and other languages. Third, it helps us to understand the cultural and social context in which the English language has developed. Fourth, it helps us to understand the role of the English language in the world today. Fifth, it helps us to understand the future of the English language.

She had been a school teacher before marriage. Their children, reported in 1871, are—Frank E. Hickox, born 10th January, 1853; Detta D. Hickox, born 2d July, 1854; Nellie D. Hickox, born 5th September, 1856. They were all born at Burton, Ohio.

Guilford, Vt., Ford, Ohio, Titusville, Penn.

FRANKLIN WILLIAM ANDREWS, third son of Luther, No. 864, of Guilford, Vt., and Ford, Ohio, and his wife, Matilda, daughter of Nathaniel Tyler, of Vernon, Vt., and his wife, Urata Houghton, born 30th May, 1838, at Guilford, Vt.; married 2d January, 1862, Bethiah Lydia Reed, daughter of Anson Reed, of Geauga County, Ohio, and his wife, Tryphena Tyler. She was born 19th June, 1838, at Geauga, Ohio. Mr. Andrews is a large land-holder in Pennsylvania, and a great dealer in "oil lands" and petroleum. In 1871 his residence was in Titusville, Penn., and his office in Chase & Stewart's Block, in that city. He was so much interested in this Memorial of our family, and so anxious to help on the enterprise, as to send me (unsolicited) his check for $100, from a brief correspondence, without ever seeing each other, showing both his confidence and munificence, where most men under like circumstances would have demurred, or at least deferred. He has my hearty thanks, and best wishes for health and prosperity. May he have the blessing of many generations resting upon him. Such material aid is far more serviceable in paying for stationery, postage stamps, or traveling expenses, than empty wishes or flattering words. Some may say this is a trifle for him, a man of wealth. True; but there are many men of wealth who never think of giving the toiling, weary antiquary a farthing, however empty his pocket, or wrinkled his brow. The antiquary, for the most part, anticipates for his compensation only the gratitude of future generations. In early manhood Mr. Andrews was a school teacher, and thus added to his book knowledge. He was only two years old when his parents removed from Vermont to Geauga County, Ohio. He has 130 oil wells in operation in Pennsylvania, and has also been engaged in the manufacture of mowing and reaping machines, and other agricultural implements, at Titusville, and has been so successful in business as to obtain an income of some $150,000 per annum in some of the most prosperous years. During the late war he was a lieutenant of the "minute men."

1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what consumers want and what problems they are trying to solve.

2. Once a market need has been identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a product that meets that need. This involves brainstorming ideas and selecting the most promising one.

3. The third step is to create a prototype of the product.

4. The fourth step is to test the prototype with a small group of consumers to get feedback on its design and functionality.

5. The final step is to launch the product into the market.

He was a farmer by occupation, but engaged in trade, both dry goods and groceries, on the Missouri, where he failed in business. In 1862 he enlisted into the army as wagon master, and did good service. On his return he, with six others, went from Waterville on a buffalo hunt up the Republican River, 17th May, 1869, where, after securing one wagon load of buffalo meat, they found they were discovered by Indians, who fired on them from a distance. It being towards night, the hunting party removed some two miles, and encamped, near an old deserted fort, without supper, and started for home in the morning without breakfast, but soon found themselves surrounded by some seventy-five or one hundred Indians. Our hunting party swam the river, except one, Mr. McChesney, who could not swim, but ran down the river among some under-brush, and was the only one that escaped the massacre. The six who swam the river hoped to reach a grove, or wood, near by, and were fast approaching it, when they all fell victims to the savages, on the 28th of May, 1869, at or near the White Rock Creek, on the Republican River. Mrs. Burk is heart-broken and sad, but was living with her surviving children on their farm at Waterville, Marshall County, Kan., in 1870. They had two sons and three daughters. She had John and Cordelia, twins, in 1867, but they died in infancy. Her son, Philip Taylor Burk, born 29th June, 1864, is with her, and her two oldest daughters, Eliza and Cynthia.

After the above was written I received intelligence of his sudden death, of heart disease, at his breakfast-table, 2d April, 1870, aged 46 years, 2 months, 28 days. The Ontario County Times, published at Canandaigua, N. Y., gave him, in an obituary notice, the highest character as a private citizen and a public officer. The article says Mr. Andrews leaves, as a precious heritage to his children, a name which has never been tarnished by a single dishonorable or unworthy act. The Advance, published at Auburn, N. Y., gives like testimony to his Christian character.

The inventory of her estate was $11,127.59. This marriage occurred after this work had gone to press. The following is from the Chicago Tribune of the 21st of July, 1872:

AN AGREKABLE SURPRISE.

"The employés in the factory of Messrs. A. H. Andrews & Co., of this city, the well known manufacturers of school and church furniture, perpetrated a very handsome surprise, last Friday night, upon the junior member of the firm, Mr. H. L. Andrews, who has just returned from a wedding trip of six weeks in New England. By a little skillful management Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were brought into the salesroom of the firm about eight o'clock, where were assembled the entire working force of the factory, numbering over one hundred men. The occasion of the gathering was immediately made manifest by the appearance of Mr. John Ditch, the superintendent of the shipping department, who, in a neat and appropriate address, presented the happy pair, in the name of the factory employes, with a beautiful testimonial, consisting of a valuable bracelet, a handsome clock, and a silver water service, all engraved with tasteful and appropriate inscriptions. Mr. Andrews replied with a very pleasant and graceful acknowledgement, and, after a brief interchange of courtesies, the gathering dispersed. The affair was a complete surprise to all but the factory men, and passed off in a manner exceedingly agreeable to all concerned."

UNSOLICITED OPINIONS OF THE PRESS AND INDIVIDUALS

ABOUT THE

"HISTORY OF NEW BRITAIN," BY ALFRED ANDREWS.

MARIETTA, OHIO, 11th Feb., 1868.

"I have been greatly interested in the work, and have read it carefully. The research and labor have been immense. I trust the sale will be large enough to repay you. The work has revived many pleasant memories, and made me a happier man."

Signed, E. B. ANDREWS.

[This is Rev. Professor Ebenezer Baldwin Andrews, once pastor of the church whose history is given, since professor in Marietta College, but later geologist for the state of Ohio.—Ed.]

NEW BRITAIN, 2d Jan., 1868.

"DEACON ANDREWS—Dear Sir: I must express to you the high satisfaction with which I have read your book, and my sense of its great value as a book of reference. It will do good now, and increase in value the older it grows. I am very glad your attention was called to the subject before any of the facts, which you have rescued from oblivion, were lost. In this world of painstaking on your part, you have rendered invaluable service to the future."

Signed, O. L. GOODELL.

[This is Rev. Constans L. Goodell, pastor of the South Church, New Britain.—Ed.]

BRISTOL, 10th Feb., 1869.

"DEACON A. ANDREWS—I am deeply interested in the historical part of your work. It is executed in a manner that does great credit to the author. The work must be highly prized by the people of New Britain, and I hope you find yourself rewarded for your great pains in preparing it."

Signed, L. GRIGGS.

Extract from a Letter dated Pittston, Penn., 10th April, 1868, from D. W. Patterson, an Author, of Newark Valley, N. Y.

"DEACON A. ANDREWS—Dear Sir: I need not tell you that I like your book, for you know I like all such works. You have made the best one of its kind. No church catalogue yet issued begins to compare with it, and I am glad to hear that your church has shown its appreciation of your labors."

Signed, D. W. PATTERSON.

Extract from a Letter dated Penn's Mills, Allegan County, Mich., 25th August, 1868, from Brevet Brigadier-General Elisha Mix.

"DEACON A. ANDREWS—Dear Sir: Allow me to say I thank you more than my pen can tell for this wonderful history of New Britain. You have done a work that will be handed down to posterity, and your name remembered with pleasure by several generations. I hope it will be the means of imparting as much pleasure and giving as much information to others as it has to me."

Signed, ELISHA MIX.

Extract from a critical review of Andrews' History of New Britain, taken from No. 2 of the 23d Volume of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, April, 1869.

"Three hundred and fifty-four closely printed octavo pages are devoted to the names and genealogy, births, marriages, and deaths, in chronological order, of the members of the First Church of New Britain, from its organization, 19th April, 1758, to 1867, a period of one hundred and nine years. This principal record commences with their first pastor; gives his place and date of birth, and marriage; children with their birth and baptism; and thus it continues to the last admitted member, 3d November, 1867, embracing 1,465 members. The Appendix contains short notices of the schools of the place, the churches, with other miscellaneous matter. Then we come to the alphabetical and general indexes. These are a comfort to look upon, they are so full and convenient. The systematic arrangement of numbering, which has been adopted, is so well carried out, that almost any name in the book can be found. Praise to the man who has a good index to his book. We must say, in all sincerity, that the work is a valuable one. We can appreciate the labor of Mr. Andrews, and hope that others in his state and in our own will be induced to imitate so laudable an example."

Signed, WILLIAM B. TOWNE, Treasurer.

From the New Britain Record of December 20th, 1867.

"It is with great pleasure that we welcome the memorial volume just issued from the press, written by our esteemed townsman, Deacon Alfred Andrews. It is a Genealogy and Ecclesiastical History of the First Church of New Britain, with an Appendix, Explanatory Notes, and a copious Index, the whole forming a handsome octavo of 538 pages. The chief excellence of such a record consists in its truthfulness, its completeness, and its clearness. It is not too much to say these three excellences are combined in this book. The uniform price is $3, and the postage, if sent abroad, say 25 cents, and can be bought by addressing the author at New Britain."

Extract from a Letter dated New York City, 7th January, 1868.

"DEACON A. ANDREWS—Dear Sir: I write to acknowledge the receipt of five copies of your Ecclesiastical History of New Britain. I shall give one copy to the library of the New York Historical Society, three to friends, and retain one for my own use. The labor, patience, and time, required in its preparation, will hardly ever be compensated in a pecuniary sense, but you have laid the sons and daughters of New Britain under a debt of gratitude which will always be recognized."

Signed, WILLIAM H. LEE, 314 and 316 BROADWAY, N. Y.

[Mr. Lee is a native of New Britain, and a wealthy dry goods merchant of Broadway, New York.—ED.]

Extract from a Letter dated New Haven, 17th February, 1868.

"MR. ANDREWS—My Dear Sir: I have just received my copy of the History of New Britain, and am struck with the thoroughness with which you have done your work, and the evidently vast amount of labor which you have bestowed upon it. It can not fail to be a volume of great interest to all New Britainers, as it certainly is to me, from recollection of the families with whom I was once connected as pastor."

Signed, C. S. LYMAN.

[This is Rev. Chester S. Lyman, professor in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale College.—ED.]

Extract from a Letter dated West Winsted, Conn., 27th May, 1869.

"ALFRED ANDREWS, Esq.—Dear Sir: I have examined your History of New Britain in detail, and can appreciate the labor, pains, and perplexities of your undertaking, and am happy to congratulate you on the fidelity with which you have carried out your design. I am experimentally aware of the difficulties you have encountered, and the amount of unappreciated labor which you have applied to the work."

Extract from a Letter dated Birmingham, Eng., 30th January, 1869.

"MY DEAR COUSIN: I want to thank you most heartily for your History of New Britain. I have read it with the deepest interest, and it has stirred up within me the most precious memories of my life. Indeed, I never read any thing that interested me more deeply. It passed before me all the faces so familiar to my boyhood, and set me longing to go back to New Britain and visit again the old houses of the old times, and the families descended from our forefathers. You have truly done a great and invaluable work for New Britain of to-day, and of all future years. I trust the people of the town will appreciate as it deserves your long and indefatigable labor, and that they will testify their obligation to you in some more substantial way than mere thanks, or passing resolutions."

Signed, ELIHU BURRITT.

[Mr. Burritt is known as the "learned blacksmith," and wrote the above while United States consul at Birmingham, Eng., under the administration of President Lincoln.—Ed.]

NOTE.—The "History of New Britain" or the "Andrews Memorial" can be had by enclosing Three Dollars and Thirty-Five Cents, ($3.35,) addressed to Alfred Andrews, New Britain, but the directions for sending by mail must be full and plain—town, county, and state, and to whom to be sent or directed. A "Hart Memorial" is also being prepared for the press by the same author.
